Quantities of Legal Brew Consumed by Thirsty of 21 States

National Shortage Feared if Consumption Continues at Present Rate—No Arrests in New York City For Intoxication—Revenue Piles Up.

New York, April 8 (AP).—Enough beer went down the hatch in the United States yesterday to float a battleship.

If breweries had been able to supply all demands—demands which continued to pour in today—they would have sold enough to have floated two battleships.

Estimates of the quantity of 3.2 beer sold during the first 24 hours of its legality ran from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 barrels.

Twenty-one states and the District of Columbia participated in the production and consumption of the new brew. Roughly estimated, a population of 70,000,000 people found beer available to them.

But there was not enough. In St. Louis, one of the world's great brewery centers, parched throats had to be carried for blocks late in the day before finding a place where taps were not yet dry.

Plenty of Beer.

Several New York breweries were obliged to halt deliveries because of shortages of barrels and bottles. They said there was plenty of beer on hand but that public clamor for it overtaxed facilities.

Revenue by the thousands of dollars accrued to various governments—city, state and Federal—as the number of "dead soldiers," sometimes referred to simply as empty bottles, grew. Efforts to estimate it today were futile, so swift were the sales.

Forty carloads of beer moved out of the yards of one Milwaukee brewery alone; yet it reported being far behind its orders. All breweries of the Wisconsin city found their most energetic efforts unequal to the demand.

The south was the only section of the nation where the alcoholic but non-intoxicating beverage was only a headline in the newspapers. Legislation looking toward legalization of the sale of beer thumbed down by the lawmakers.

Verdict Favorable

The probability that initial enthusiasm to take aboard samples of the beverage which has been an outlaw for 13 years would ebb after the novelty wore off, was expressed in several quarters. The public verdict on the quality of the brew, however, was generally favorable.

With consumption heavy, an opportunity was given to observe whether the beverage possessed the "authority" of pre-Volstead brew. The observation of police officials was that despite the attendant hilarity, there were no signs of intoxication attributable to 3.2 beer.

In New York city for the first time in months there was not one arrest in the 24-hour period ending last midnight on a driving while drunk charge. A check of police stations disclosed no arrests from 3.2 intoxication.

The officer stationed at 36th street and Broadway did see a snake at 1:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but on closer examination it proved to be actually a snake and no figment of his imagination. He got a can, coaxed the snake inside, and turned the situation over to the S. P. C. A.

With the first day of sales hardly over, Joseph Dubin, editor of Brewery Age, expressed the opinion that if consumption continued at its present rate, a national shortage of beer would result in ten days.

Minimum Wage Bill Before Governor

Albany, N. Y., April 8 (AP)—A minimum wage bill for women and children—with teeth in it—was awaiting the signature today of Governor Lehman, one of the chief sponsors of such wage regulation.

Directed against the "constant lowering of wages by unscrupulous employers," the bill brings the state's police power to bear "for the protection of industry and of women and minors employed therein."

Under the measure, as passed yesterday by the legislature, a new branch of the labor department is set up, to be known as the minimum wage division. Two classes of minimum wage orders may be issued from this division, the "directory" and "mandatory" orders.

If an employer disregards the directory order, the state is authorized to publish his name in any newspaper as a violator of the minimum wage provisions. Newspapers are exempt from damage suits as a result of such publication.

For persistent violators, the minimum wage division may issue a mandatory order. Failure to observe this constitutes a misdemeanor, and the offending employer may be fined $50 to $200, and imprisoned from 10 to 90 days.

The bill was sponsored in the legislature by young Senator Albert Wald, Democrat from New York city, whose sweatshop and loft factory employers are among those against whom the measure is directed. It provides that 50 citizens may petition for a fair wage hearing, and the evidence is to be considered by a board of nine—three employers, three employes and three disinterested persons. This board will submit its recommendations to the labor commissioner and the minimum wage director.

President to Center Efforts on Jobs and Domestic Debt Relief

Washington, April 8 (AP).—President Roosevelt is preparing for an early conclusion of his domestic emergency program and it will be centered on more jobs and domestic debt relief to offset deflationary effects of earlier moves.

He will add shortly to the $500,000,000 direct relief bill, securities regulation, and the farm refinancing and commodity price-lifting measures pending in Congress the following:

A two billion dollar city home mortgage refinancing plan.

Two or three billion dollars for public works to increase employment.

Banking reforms, probably with provision for speeding payments of deposits in closed banks and insurance for future deposits.

A broad program for development of the Tennessee Valley, with immediate restoration of the Muscle Shoals, Alabama, power and nitrate plant.

Legislation for reorganization and relief of the eleven billion dollar railroad industry.

He intends to stroke the balance between drastic reductions in government expenditures—or deflation—and the new development scheme by a sweeping government reorganization.

Congressional leaders are cooperating to speed the new domestic program to conclusion by mid-May and permit the President to turn his attention to international angle of the economic problem which he is attacking by inviting the chiefs of foreign governments here.

In all probability the final phases of the national legislative program will be completed and in the hands of Congress by the end of next week. Meanwhile, he is preparing to put into quick operation the farm relief plan now before the Senate. Congress was in recess today for over the week-end. But leaders predicted the farm bill would be through the Senate by late next week.

Search Continues For Akron Victims

Aboard the U. S. S. Portland, at Sea off the Jersey Coast, April 8 (AP).—A quiet man with a smile that has been saddened by the tragic events of the past few days sits at his desk out here 30 miles from the New Jersey coast conducting a day and night search for wreckage of the giant dirigible Akron and the bodies of 71 of his naval comrades.

He is Capt. Herbert Fairfax Leary, 39-year-old commander of the only naval cruiser in the North Atlantic at the present time.

The Portland was ordered to this spot near which the Akron went down immediately after last Tuesday's tragedy. Only three of the 76 persons aboard survived and only two bodies have been recovered.

"We are conducting a relentless search," Captain Leary said today. "We cannot hold out hope that any of the missing still are alive, but we do hope to recover their bodies and allay in some degree at least the heartache of relatives."

Captain Leary's desk is piled high with newly traced maps and other data, and at a moment's notice he can tell just where any one of the 30 searching vessels under his direction is operating. In two days he has conducted a search over 35,000 square miles of water and now operations are concentrated in an area of 900 square miles with its center 29 miles from Barnegat lightship.

The use of airplanes was discontinued today and three coast guard destroyers, three navy destroyers, four large coast guard patrol boats, 14 smaller patrol boats and four navy tugs continued the search.

Day and night, regardless of weather conditions, they are dragging the ocean bottom with grappling hooks. The captain's maps show that 27 pieces of wreckage have been salvaged. His theory is that as the hull of the former queen of the air breaks up, bodies will disentangle themselves and come to the surface. Among the largest pieces of wreckage picked up was a chest of signal flares from the Akron's control room and an unidentified flying suit.

New Pastor Will Preach Here Sunday

The Rev. Charles E. Rignall, newly appointed pastor of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church will officiate at all services Sunday, preaching his first sermon as pastor in the morning at 11 o'clock. His topic will be "The Appeal of a Great Pageant."

The Rev. Mr. Rignall comes to Kingston from Catskill where he has been pastor of the Methodist Church for the past five years. His first appointment was at Stone Ridge in 1918. He served as pastor there for seven years, going on subsequent assignments to Cold Spring, Walton and Catskill.

The Rev. Robert L. Ross, pastor of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church has gone to Catskill where the charge as minister is less burdensome. He served the Kingston church faithfully for two years and was invited unanimously to continue as its pastor but preferred the lighter charge in Catskill instead.

Republicans Reject Compromise Proposal For Control Of Beer

Albany, N. Y., April 8 (AP).—Prolongation of the present legislative session, which had been tentatively set for adjournment this afternoon, was in prospect today following failure of Governor Lehman and the Republican legislative leaders to arrive at an agreement in their latest compromise conference over beer control legislation.

The conference broke up last night with the governor describing as "more political in character than ever" the latest Republican proposal, which was that county boards of supervisors have a share in the appointive power to county control boards. The Republicans also incorporated in their plan a suggestion that the state control board be empowered to revoke licenses granted by the county boards they wish to see created.

Meanwhile such cities of the state as have local beer control regulations, continued to control the beer traffic in their own way. The only state beer law passed by the legislature is that for a tax of $1 a barrel on all beer sold.

Last night's conference followed rejection by the Republicans of the governor's own compromise suggestion, which was for appointment of members of the county boards by the state board.

The governor originally had proposed that the creation of county advisory boards be optional with the state board. Yesterday he agreed to revise this plan to make creation of the advisory boards compulsory. The Republicans refused to accept this suggestion, however.

In this place they proposed that "the state board shall have power to revoke all licenses after a hearing and to review all applications rejected by the local board."

After the conference the governor issued his statement in which he said:

"I deeply regret that the Republican leaders have seen fit to reject my proposals. Their counter proposition is more political in character than even their original plan. It suggests as a new appointing power to the local boards the board of supervisors of the county.

"Their statement makes no reference to New York city, but a logical extension of their principle would substitute the board of estimate or the board of aldermen of New York city for the board of supervisors. Everybody in the state knows that such county and city boards are all essentially political, and it would be natural for their appointment to be political.

"Furthermore the suggested plan would mean stripping the state control board of all real power and authority.

BULLETS FROM BATTLE FALL INTO U. S. ARMY CAMPS

Peiping, April 8 (AP).—The United States legation was informed today that bullets from fighting about Chinwangtao were falling in the summer camp of the Fifteenth Infantry Regiment, United States Army.

A small detachment is at the camp now. About 800 members of the infantry regiment are stationed along the railway leading from that region to Peiping.

A Japanese report said that Chinwangtao, important Chinese seaport in the railway treaty area which has large foreign interests, was occupied today by Manchukuan troops. It could not be confirmed here.

There were no reports of American casualties.

ANNUAL WEEK OF PRAYER AT THE SALVATION ARMY

The Salvation Army will conduct its annual week of prayer and self denial with special meetings nightly, commencing Sunday, April 9, and ending Easter Sunday, April 16.

Monday, April 10, is the birthday anniversary of the Founder William Booth. In observing this event, an illustrated lecture will be given in the Army Hall, at 7:30 Monday evening, by Adjutant W. N. Wood. This lecture pictures some of the Army's operation around-the-world. Views of the Kingston Corps will be seen and also many branches of work will be pictured. Today the flag is flying, and work well established in 83 countries. The public is invited to see these pictures.

Tank Filled With Alcohol.

An Autocar tank car, standing along the street in Monticello was taken over by the police of that village Friday and on examination was found to be filled with alleged alcohol. The case was reported to the Kingston prohibition office, who took over the car and contents and brought them to Kingston. No arrests were made at the time.

In Police Court.

Victor Bottia, 18, of Spring Valley, arrested Friday afternoon for vagrancy, was given a suspended sentence by Judge Bernard A. Culloton in city court this morning and ordered to leave town.

Herbert Buckman of 173 Lincoln street arrested for third degree assault at his home, April 1, was fined $10.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, April 8 (AP)—Treasury receipts for April 6 were $1,425,516.45; expenditures $18,322,725.73; balance $548,244,357.26. Customs duties for six days of April were $3,472,222.55.

Edouard Herriot Will Visit U.S. For France In World Discussion

Former Premier Will Represent His Country at Washington in World Conference on Economics—Plans to Sail April 19.

Paris, April 8 (AP).—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, dominant figure in national and international affairs, has accepted the government's invitation to represent France in the World Conference assembling in Washington.

He probably will sail on the steamship Ile De France April 19.

While the announcement of his acceptance said it was "virtual," the government was confident he will go.

It was understood the bluff and genial government party leader hesitated only on account of the still outstanding divergence of opinion between him and the Chamber of Deputies majority over the war debt payment. The chamber, which supported him on every other issue, overthrew Herriot's cabinet last December because he demanded the payment be made.

It was expected some way would be found to overcome this difficulty. Norman H. Davis, United States special ambassador, made clear the talks with President Roosevelt in Washington will be on general matters pertaining to the forthcoming World Economic Conference in London rather than war debts.

Davis went today to Berlin where he will confer with President von Hindenburg and Chancellor Hitler. He is expected to make arrangements with Germany for its representation in the Washington meetings along with other world powers, as he has done in Paris and London.

Premier Daladier and Herriot were said to be in complete agreement on the four-power peace plan of Premier Mussolini of Italy. Writing in a Lyons newspaper today concerning the pact, Herriot said, "Revision without method and without supervision would certainly mean war." He adopted the government's thesis that frontiers are changeable only under the covenant of the League of Nations.

It was expected Premier MacDonald of Great Britain would prolong his visit in Washington to coincide with Herriot's visit.

Hitler Will Pick State Governors

Chancellor Assumes Dictatorial Powers Over Entire Government Machinery of the Various Republics.

Berlin, April 8 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler assumed dictatorial powers today over the entire government machinery of the various republics and free states which made up the German federation as defined by the now extinct republican constitution.

The chancellor will appoint governors of the various states who, in turn, will appoint state premiers and will rule independently of the state legislatures.

The chancellor himself becomes governor of Prussia. Thus the appointment of a premier of that largest state, which has reported to have caused a deadlock between the Nazis and their Nationalist allies last month, is robbed of its importance.

Herr Hitler has decided to name Captain Hermann Goering, minister without portfolio, and not Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen, as the premier of Prussia. It was semi-officially intimated that Von Papen himself had renounced aspirations to the premiership after the cabinet passed a law empowering the change, because the premier now is subordinated to the chancellor.

The vice chancellor is to be given "other important tasks on behalf of the reich."

The Prussian diet, which was to have elected the premier under constitutional provision, adjourned indefinitely more than two weeks ago without taking action. Informed quarters said Nazis, who lacked a clear majority in the diet, insisted on the selection of Captain Hermann Goering as premier while the Nationalists were equally firm in backing President Von Hindenburg's friend, Vice Chancellor Franz Von Papen.

Baron Von Papen started last night by train for Rome, where he is to see Pope Pius concerning the relations between the Nazis and the Roman Catholic Church in Germany. Captain Goering, admirer of Mussolini, who has called the German Nazis "the brethren" of the Italian Fascists, also is going to Rome, leaving Monday by plane.

Committee To Plan June Conventions

City Judge Bernard A. Culloton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has called a meeting to be held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Tuesday evening to arrange plans for the conventions that will be held in Kingston in June. The New York State Civil Service Association and the Royal Arcanum are expected to hold their annual conventions in the city that month. The Civil Service convention is expected to be attended by between 600 and 800 delegates, and the Royal Arcanum by a similar number. The common council Friday evening appointed Aldermen Zacca, Epstein and McGrane as an aldermanic committee to meet with this general city committee on Tuesday evening.

Business Picks Up As Legal 3.2 Beer Puts Some Jobless To Work

(By the Associated Press.)

The jingle of coins in cash registers and the rustle of bank notes in long-empty pockets accompanied the gurgle of beer today as many parts of the country announced

"Business is better."

Thousands knew again what it is to have a job, many stores reported increased business as beer, smiling weather, and the approach of Easter combined to stir demand; brewers everywhere rubbed their hands and grinned happily, newspapers in many cities had more advertisements. Dun & Bradstreets, trade journal, reported a general pick-up in business.

The friends of beer were prepared to attribute most of it to that beverage, a contention that beers' foes were expected to dispute. Comprehensive data was lacking, but anti-prohibitionists pointed with pride to figures from several cities.

In New York, for instance, where thousands were talking of men being re-employed and equipment purchased, the city officials announced the receipt of $200,000 in fees for permits to sell beer. Beer advertisements swelled the newspapers.

At Chicago, the nation's second largest city, the Herald and Examiner, said merchants agreed the first day of beer was one of the greatest spending sprees since the 1929 crash. This, however, was attributed to improved weather. All the newspapers there carried extensive beer advertisements, and a pickup in theatre and clubs "ads" occurred. Chicago railroads announced heavy beer movements and foresaw more jobs.

San Francisco sounded a cheery note, with re-employment estimated as high as 7,000; newspapers carrying more advertisements than for a year and a half, and business generally reported improved. The employment gain in Los Angeles was estimated unofficially at 10,000.

Louisville, Ky., where estimates of re-employment ran as high as as 1,000, saw advertising swell two newspapers to the largest week-day editions of the year. It was mostly Easter business and there were few beer advertisements. A Washington paper had the biggest volume of ads in any regular issue this year or any time last spring. St. Louis, Columbus, Cincinnati and Cleveland all saw much beer advertising, as did many other cities. Some newspapers adhered to a policy of excluding beer advertising.

One Boston brewer announced he had put 500 men to work; another in St. Louis hired an additional crew of telephone girls to handle orders. While full brewery crews labored night and day, other men rushed installation on new equipment.

A Harrisburg, Pa., newspaper profited two ways from beer. Some advertisements announced beer for sale, while one restaurant took space to say it would not sell beer.

TWO ARRESTED FOR TAKING ELECTRIC MOTOR AT ACCORD

Carlson Coddington and George Atkins, both 19 years of age, residing on Lucas avenue, Kingston, were arrested Friday by Sergeant Hopkins and Trooper Reilly on a charge of having stolen a Wagner electric motor from Samuel Crystal of Accord on or about October 28 of last year. The youths were arraigned before Justice Fred Simpson of the town of Rochester, who held them for the grand jury on charges of burglary in the third degree. They were committed to the Ulster county jail.

The stolen motor, which was used by Mr. Crystal to pump water for his house at Accord, is now at the sheriff's office. It is said to have been sold to a party in Rifton for $10.

GAY GALLUT GOT FINED TEN DOLLARS

A man who was booked as Carl Gallut of Kingston was arrested Wednesday by Chief of Police Richter of Saugerties and arraigned before Justice Charles H. Bennett on complaint of Marion Newkirk, an 18 year old girl who lives on the state road near Saugerties. Miss Newkirk charged that Gallut had taken her for a ride in his automobile and instead of allowing her to get out drove to the High Woods road. He finally became alarmed at her outcry and released her from the car. Justice Bennett imposed a fine of $10 and suspended a sentence of 15 days in jail.

WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR WEEK BEGINNING MONDAY

North and Middle Atlantic States: Occasional rain beginning Monday or Tuesday and ending Wednesday, then generally fair until Saturday when showers are probable. Warmer except along the New England coast Monday and warmer in North Atlantic States Tuesday; cooler Wednesday night and Thursday and somewhat warmer Saturday.

May Degrade Jews.

Berlin, April 8 (AP).—One of the greatest upheavals in civil service known in modern times, involving the degradation of the Jew to a second class citizen, is foreshadowed in the publication today of the Hitler cabinet's civil service law.

Mrs. Edgar Wallace Dead.

London, April 8 (AP).—Mrs. Edgar Wallace, widow of the author, died today at her London home after a long illness.

Aldermen Fail To Enact Beer Legislation; Await State Act

Corporation Counsel Flanagan Informs Aldermen City Will Not Lose Revenue by Waiting Until State Acts—Hasty Legislation Not Advisable Here, He Said.

The common council meeting in adjourned session Friday evening to consider beer legislation decided to defer consideration of any proposed legislation until the state legislature had adopted a beer bill. Hasty action on beer legislation in Kingston was not advisable the aldermen were informed by Corporation Counsel Chris J. Flanagan, who said that the city would not lose revenue by waiting until after the state had enacted legislation before local action was taken.

Alderman Doheny who had introduced the resolution that the council meet Friday evening to enact beer legislation said that since the meeting Tuesday evening circumstances had arisen that altered the necessity of immediate action and he believed the better policy would be to wait and see what Albany was going to do about the beer question before Kingston adopted any beer control measures.

Corporation Counsel Flanagan said that since the meeting Tuesday he had received considerable literature regarding the beer question from the Mayor's Conference. He had read it over carefully and also had read what the newspapers had to say about action being taken in larger cities of the state. He said that a beer bill would be passed in Albany and that the proper thing for the city of Kingston would be to refrain from adopting some hasty ordinance which might prove valueless after the beer bill passed the state legislature.

The corporation counsel said that the city could not tax beer; all it could do was to require a license fee from persons handling beer. He said there were a number of important questions to be decided before any ordinance was adopted. The beer question was being handled by the board of health in New York city; here it was a question of whether the health board should handle it or the police department. Under the circumstances the only sane and proper thing to do was to await the bill the state legislature will pass and frame the local ordinance according to its provisions.

Alderman Reiyea suggested that the matter be left in the hands of the laws and rules committee.

President C. J. Heiselman said that was a good idea and the committee could keep in touch with the situation and as soon as a beer bill was passed at Albany the committee could get in touch with Corporation Counsel Flanagan and draft a suitable ordinance for Kingston.

A Convention Committee

President Heiselman said that Judge Culloton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, had suggested to him that a convention committee be appointed among the members of the council and that this committee could meet with a general city committee to arrange for coming conventions in Kingston.

President Heiselman said he would appoint Aldermen Zacca, Epstein and McGrane as such a committee. He said that there would be a meeting of the general city committee at the Governor Clinton Hotel next Tuesday evening.

The council then adjourned.

Big Demand Here for New Legal 3.2 Beer, No Arrests Reported

Distributors Will Not Be Able To Meet The Demand Over The Week-End—Approximately 200 Apply For Licenses—Barmann's Beer Will Be Ready About May 1.

Despite the large consumption of the new legal 3.2 beer in this city on Friday there were no arrests reported by the local police department for public intoxication. The places distributing the new brew did a big business and distributors of some of the new product, which comes from out of town, report that they will be unable to meet the demand over the week-end. Old-timers who sampled the new beer said that it had a pleasing taste, but lacked the "kick" of the old product that they drank in the days before prohibition.

Charles F. Lieske, deputy collector of internal revenue, received approximately 200 applications which were issued under the old excise law at a charge of $20 a year. Applicants paid $5, which covered them for the quarter ending June 30. Several obtained wholesalers' licenses, paying a fee of $12.50. Mr. Lieske received another large number of applications today at his office in the court house.

Barmann's Beer About May 1.

Peter Barmann Company, Inc. announced Friday that in order to maintain the high quality of the beer made at the local brewery, its product will not be ready for distribution until the first of May. Mathias Zellner, famous Kingston brewmaster, will be in charge of the local plant. It is expected that the new brew when ready for consumption will be as mellow as the product that was in great demand in the days before prohibition.

The latest modern machinery has been installed and many improvements are being made at the brewery. All local men will be employed at the plant. Distributors throughout Kingston and Ulster county will handle the local product.

Supply Received in Time.

The new beer began to roll in Kingston on Friday afternoon, being hauled here in trucks, and many of the hotels and restaurants that had arranged to handle beer had received their supply in time to serve it with the evening meal.

Despite the crowds and the attendant hilarity in many of the places there was no disorder and the police department made no arrests for public intoxication.

Beer From Out of Town.

The 3.2 beer on sale here on Friday and today was all out of town beer, as none of the local breweries are ready yet to brew. The beer sold here was Ruppert's, Olde Heidelberg, Schaeffer's, Pabst-Blue Ribbon and Knickerbocker beer.

In spite of the depression and lack of work all of the places handling the 3.2 beer reported that business was brisk.

All of the applications received by Deputy Lieske at the court house Friday and today were not from local dealers, but from men all over the county who desire to handle the beer.

One applicant who applied this morning for a permit told a reporter that he thought it best to gamble with $5 rather than take a chance of handling beer without a permit.

To Aid Investors

State Capitol, Albany, N. Y., April 8 (AP).—The Senate of the New York legislature today passed the Dunnigan bill providing for a semi-public corporation to aid investors in real estate mortgage certificates in reorganization of their investments made necessary by the drastic decline in real estate values.

County Court to Convene Monday

Civil cases will be taken up for trial in county court when it convenes on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the court house with County Judge Frederick G. Traver presiding. The April term convened last Monday but no civil cases were found ready for trial, and an adjournment was taken to next Monday afternoon after a civil calendar had been made up.

The first case on the civil calendar is that of the L. F. Barnon Plumbing, Heating and Contracting Company vs. Michael Goffredi, an action on a contract.

Criminal work will be taken up in county court on Monday, April 17, and an extra panel of 149 jurors has been drawn to report in court that afternoon at 2 o'clock, at which time it is expected that a jury will be selected to hear the evidence in the Uriah Quick murder case. Quick was found murdered at his home in Leibhardt in January.

Another Conference To Decide Beer Bill

State Capitol, Albany, N. Y., April 8 (AP).—Legislative leaders went into conference with Governor Lehman at the executive offices today in a new effort to break the legislative deadlock over state control of beer.

Unofficial reports indicated that Governor Lehman was ready to recognize the Republicans' demand for licensing power for county boards, but insisted upon a setup different from the one the Republicans suggested during yesterday's exchange of compromise proposals.

Under the setup for county boards reported to have been proposed by the governor today, they would be bi-partisan, consisting of one member named by the state control board and another named by the medical society of the county and approved by the county board of supervisors. Yesterday the Republicans proposed that the supervisors make one of the two appointments outright.

The reported agreement arrived at today also gives the state control board power of revocation of the licenses issued by the county boards after hearings, the hearings to be subject to court review.

Governor Lehman, Senator George R. Fearon, Republican minority leader, and Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic majority leader, were understood to be drafting a new measure to carry out the compromise plan.

To Pay Respects.

Members of the Fifth Ward Democratic Club will meet at the hall Sunday evening at 8 o'clock to proceed in a body to the home of their late member, D. Henry, for the purpose of paying their respects to the deceased.

Young people representing the various churchhes of Kingston will assist Dr. Gates in conducting the service.

ADVERTISING NOT CUT: BUSINESS INCREASED 10%

Here is one man to whom that adage, "It Pays to Advertise" has been emphatically proved. E. J. Peterson, president of the Peterson Company in Buffalo, which has manufactured Peterson's ointment and soap for over 60 years, just issued his financial statement for the year 1932 and despite panics and depressions, he reports a 10% increase in sales, and announces the company is moving into larger quarters.

"I feel that newspaper advertising and newspapers alone are entirely responsible for our success" states Mr. Peterson. "During our 60 years in business we have used newspapers exclusive of all other media and I feel, as my father before me, that newspaper advertising has done a splendid job for us in selling Peterson's ointment and soap all over the United States and Canada. During these years of so-called depression, we didn't cut down our advertising one iota, and the result was a most gratifying increase in business."

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 8 (AP).—Lack of [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] gave the stock market an upward tilt toward the close of a quiet, listless session today. Net gains ranged from fractions to around a point in several leading issues, but sales for the [illegible] session were only about [illegible] shares.

[illegible] activity in shares was held [illegible] for a time by a [illegible] in grains in the early trading, [illegible] the encouraging character of week-end business advices finally [illegible] enough short covering and new buying to pull the list a little higher.

Rails were helped by the week's car loadings report, showing a greater than seasonal gain, and [illegible] that the revived beer business would provide a fair volume of traffic. Issues up about ½ to 1 [illegible] included Santa Fe, New York Central, Chesapeake and Ohio, Louisville and Nashville and Union Pacific. Delaware and Hudson [illegible] 2.

Steels displayed the most [illegible] group strength in some [illegible], with a number of comparatively inactive issues joining in the movement. Issues up around a point included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, National Steel, A. M. Byers and American Rolling Mill, while Republic and [illegible] advanced fractionally.

Oils and sugars lagged, and the [illegible] appeared fully to have discounted the new beer business. Farm equipments and mail orders were fairly firm. Woolworth was heavy, [illegible] dividend uncertainty.

The total short interest reported at April 1 of [illegible] shares against [illegible] a month earlier, indicated some impairment of the technical position, although the current short interest was believed to be of fair proportions in view of the small volume of trading.

Unemployed Seek Spots for Gardens

The Workers' Co-operative Association is seeking garden plots for its members. Many of the unemployed are desirous of having a garden where they can utilize their idle time for their own benefit. In this movement the association has the cooperation of the State Emergency Relief Administration. The agricultural adviser of the state administration will be here Tuesday to confer with the officers of the workers' association and to look over garden plots.

These gardens are known as subsistence gardens and their promotion was one of the special activities of the State Relief Administration in 1932. The College of Agriculture of Cornell University is cooperating in the movement. The college provides without charge information and plans for the planting and care of gardens. In 1932 the movement was not promoted in Kingston but elsewhere throughout the state more than 75,000 persons were benefited by the gardens. There were [illegible] individual gardens averaging about one-eighth of an acre each. The total value of the crops was [illegible] with a net return of [illegible].

Those who have land suitable for gardening either in the city or within walking distance are requested to write or phone in to the workers' association at once so that the plots can be checked on Tuesday when the agricultural expert of the state administration will be here. Either write to the Workers' Association at 34 Thomas street or phone in giving the name of the owner and the location and size of the plot. The phone number of the association is 2774.

Skies Clear, Flood Sufferers Are Hopeful

Memphis, Tenn., April 8 (AP)—Clearing skies today led lowlanders in flooded sections of Mississippi, Arkansas and Tennessee to hope the swollen waters had done their worst, but dynamiting and the appearance of buffalo gnats complicated matters.

The refugee problem threatened to assume major proportions should the water continue its stand over the thousands of acres of low country it has invaded. Estimates of the number made temporarily homeless placed the figure at 3,500. Most of these, however, are negro farmers used to abandoning their homes in the spring and living with friends or relatives until floods recede.

Levees at a number of places, particularly near Webb and Sumner, Miss., have shown signs of weakening under the pressure of the water, but 300 negro convicts from Parchman prison farm have been sent into the district to bolster them. So far no major breaks have occurred.

The flood crest of the Mississippi has not reached Memphis but is expected within two days. Flood stage here is 35 feet. The river may reach 38 feet but army engineers in charge of flood control work along the river estimate levees can stand 46 feet.

Pease Bill Awaits Governor Lehman

State Capitol, Albany, N. Y., April 8 (AP)—The Pease bill, removing the 50 per cent surtax on automobile trucks scheduled to have become effective this year as part of Governor Lehman's tax program, was passed by the Senate today and sent to Governor Lehman for his signature. Pending the enactment of the repeal law, the time for re-registering trucks has been extended to April 15.

The trucks surtax bill, enacted during the closing hours of the last session of the legislature and originally scheduled to become effective March 1 of this year, has been attacked both by truck interests and by farmers who operate trucks.

A move to exempt trucks weighing 4,000 pounds or less failed earlier in the present session. The time for re-registering them was extended to April 1 and later to April 15 under two emergency bills and finally Governor Lehman indicated a willingness to have the surtax repealed. It was intended to bring the state approximately $7,000,000 in new revenue.

Recover Body Of Colonel Masury

U. S. S. Portland at sea off New Jersey coast, April 8 (AP)—The body of Lieutenant Colonel A. F. Masury, U. S. A. ordnance reserve, who was a guest officer aboard the airship Akron on its last voyage, was recovered today near the scene of the disaster.

Col. Masury's body was sighted by the tanker John D. Archbold at 5:30 a. m.

The Archbold reported having seen the body and it was picked up by the Coast Guard patrol boat [illegible] 12 miles off Beach Haven, N. J.

Identification was made from papers found in Masury's pockets. The body is being taken to the Brooklyn navy yard by the Portland.

Foster, Song Writer, Born at Lawrenceville, Pa.

Stephen C. Foster, beloved American song writer, was born in 1826 at Lawrenceville, near Pittsburgh, Pa., and received instruction in voice and instruments music at an early age. Most of his southern ballads were inspired by trips to Bardstown, Ky., and visits to Cincinnati, where he gained knowledge of negroes. It was a visit to Bardstown that inspired "My Old Kentucky Home." Several of his songs were composed before he was twenty years of age. His "Old Folks at Home" was published in 1851. About one-fourth of his 160 songs, of which he wrote both words and music, were pathetic negro melodies, which he did much to develop. After 1860 he lived in New York. He died June 13, 1864, at the Bellevue hospital at the age of thirty-eight. He was practically penniless at the time of his death. He was married and had one daughter, Mrs. Marion Foster Welch, and one brother, Morrison. Among his most famous songs are "Old Black Joe," "Nelly Was a Lady," "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "Suwanee River" and "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming."

$50,000 Worth of Forgotten Jewelry in Firm's Vaults

Forgotten or forsaken by its owners, unclaimed jewelry worth $50,000 lies in the vaults of one of New York's biggest jewelry firms.

Sunbursts, flower lockets and closed-case watches, reminiscent of the days of Merry Widow hats and turtle-neck sweaters, together with hundreds of small modern pieces, all kept in perfect condition by constant care, await the call of their owners.

Some pieces have been there as long as 40 years. One watch bears on its repair tag the date "January 3, 1893."

Several years ago a woman called at the store for an heirloom that had been her mother's, left there 20 years before for cleaning. The woman who left it had departed suddenly for California, where she married and, to all intents and purposes, "forgot about her mother's watch."

Her husband struck oil, became wealthy, and on a pleasure trip to New York she remembered the watch, identified it, and was pleased to find it adjusted and in good running order.—New York Sun.

How to Make Time

People who get through an immense amount of work are always those who know that idling must not be allowed to put forth a covetous hand and steal five minutes here and half an hour there. They can obtain a succession of successful results of application, as a good farmer can obtain the most from his land by a proper rotation of crops. It is often found that the busiest folk are those who can find time to do a kind act to a friend or neighbor, for they know how to fit in one thing with another, till they are actually said to be able to "make" time when wanted.—Montreal Herald.

When Steamboat Trade Boomed

Steamboat trade on the Mississippi reached its highest peak in the 50s and on the Missouri between the years 1855 and 1860. Fifty-nine steamboats were operating on the lower Missouri in 1858. Before the Civil war most boats paid for themselves and yielded good profits as there was practically no competition. The whole aspect was changed by the war. Many boats were taken over by military authorities and the war activities on the river interfered with trade. Later the building of the railroads took away most of the river traffic and after 1887 steamboats were practically useless.

Reverse of Ghosts

Zombis are the reverse of ghosts. Instead of being disembodied spirits, they are presumed to be animate bodies without souls, generally corpses disinterred before dissolution of the physical structure and endowed with the power of motion and limited thought and sensibility by magic means. It is the highest form of sorcery, which in turn is a super-development of the African voodoo as practiced in the West Indies. Of course, no scientific evidence of the existence of zombis has ever been adduced.

Parliament Members May Be Jailed

Members of parliament who are persistently absent from the sittings of the house are liable to imprisonment in the Clock tower at the order of the Speaker. The last time this happened was in 1880.

Strike Renewed for Better Milk Prices

Strikers Dump Load of 30 Cans of Milk—State Police Escort Trucks Into Rochester

Rochester, N. Y., April 8 (AP)—Independent dairy farmers of the Rochester area began their renewed strike for better milk prices today in the face of an unprecedented mobilization of state, county and city authorities with a series of truck dumpings throughout a 25-mile radius.

Armed with tear gas grenades, a convoy of state police escorted three trucks of the Dairymen's League into the city early this morning, where they were relieved by an escort of city police. Shortly after the trucks left the League station at Lakeville, a crowd of strikers appeared and dumped several cans without resistance.

As they hung about the station a smaller truck appeared and its load of 15 cans was promptly spilled. The driver was threatened with destruction of his truck if he did not promise to stop hauling League milk. After promising to do so he promptly speeded to the state police station at Avon to report the occurrence.

Three score strikers were stationed at one of the principal entrances to the city near the city line. They told reporters they already had dumped one load and were prepared to stop all trucks.

William Elser, wholesale grocer of this city, protested to Governor Lehman on the action of strikers who early today stopped a truckload of sugar consigned to him from Boston.

Elser complained the strikers threatened violence and damaged the cargo by cutting open several bags to make sure no milk was concealed. The truck was halted between Avon and Rochester, he said.

The sheriff's office put 25 deputies on patrol early this morning and Lieut. Bernie Wayne of the Avon State Police station issued extra night sticks and steel helmets to his command.

It was expected that more than 200 troopers would be on duty in the area before noon.

Nearly 100 directors and regional officers of the Dairymen's League, meeting last night with Howard McClenathan, district representative, demanded protection from state, county and city authorities for their shipments of milk.

Society Notes

Price—Perry.

A wedding of interest to Kingston took place recently in the rectory of St. Leo's Church, Irvington, N. J., when Miss Rosalie Perry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo C. Perry, of 28 Temple place, Irvington, became the bride of William Shepard Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Price, of 26 Elm street, Elizabeth. A small reception after the ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride wore a pale blue taffeta gown with touches of pale pink and a picture hat to match. She carried pink roses. Miss Helen Price, sister of the bridegroom, the only attendant, was attired in pale blue taffeta with white trimming. She also wore a picture hat to match and carried tea roses. Al Perry of Kingston, uncle of the bride, was best man. After a motor trip through New York state and Connecticut, Mr. and Mrs. Price will make their home in Irvington.

Surprise Shower

A surprise shower was given Miss Vivian Richards in honor of her approaching marriage to Donald Van Etten, at the home of her mother on March 29. The room was decorated in gold and white. The bride-to-be received many beautiful gifts. Lunch was served and all departed wishing the bride many happy wedded years. Those present were: Mrs. D. Roy Van Etten, Mrs. N. Schoonmaker, Mrs. M. Lane, all of Kerhonkson; Miss Cleo Every of Port Ewen, Mrs. E. Callahan of Albany, Mrs. G. Roswell Mountfort Rymph of East Park, formerly of Port Ewen, who disappeared from his home the morning of March 27, was found drowned in the Crum Elbow creek between East Park and Hyde Park Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Rowland P. Carpenter, acting medical examiner of Dutchess county, in pronouncing death due to drowning said he believed Rymph had committed suicide. The body was found in a secluded part of the creek about 200 yards from the state highway that leads to Poughkeepsie by Mrs. Mary Phelps of East Park. On the shore a short distance from where the body lay in the water were the man's coat, boots and hat. Reports were that he had been acting queerly of late. Mr. Rymph, who was born near Port Ewen and left there for East Park at an early age, resided with his sister, Mrs. Jasper Hutchings. Besides her he is survived by Zebulon of East Park and Dr. Leander Rymph of Bloomington, Ulster county. He was 58 years of age. He was a member of the Hyde Park Reformed Church.

About the Folks

Dr. Jack Lehner resumed the practice of medicine today after a brief illness.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred [illegible] of Locust avenue Friday at the Kingston Hospital.

John [illegible] of 224 Spring street and Jay [illegible], his room-mate at American University, Washington, D. C., have left for an extended visit in the middle west.

Scout Executive W. A. Wright and Mrs. Wright went Thursday to Asbury Park for the annual conference of Boy Scout Region No. 2. They expect to return home tomorrow.

Federation Sponsors Play at High School

While the tickets for "There's a [illegible] Julie," the play to be given under the patronage of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs on the evening of April 25 in the high school auditorium, are selling [illegible] well, many people wish to know a little more about the story and the cast of this comedy. [illegible] the play is an [illegible] mixture of interesting [illegible] and [illegible] of the [illegible] situations and lines will be enjoyed [illegible] the public [illegible] very [illegible] than the acting of the players. With Miss [illegible] as Leonora [illegible], [illegible] as Dwight Houston, Miss Edith [illegible] as the old English nurse and [illegible] as Peter, there could be no doubt of the finished [illegible] of the acting.

The following is the synopsis:

The play opens with Leonora [illegible], a very attractive young English woman, discussing with a friend over the telephone a certain young American, met the previous afternoon at tea. She is endeavoring to learn something about him without disclosing her keen and more than friendly interest. In the midst of her naive inquiries her old nurse, who now serves her in the capacity of a glorified lady's maid, announces that a young gentleman, by name Dwight Houston, is calling. It was the object of Leonora's hectic inquiries.

He, it appears, has been impelled by an urge similar to her own, but relies upon the personal touch rather than the impersonal telephone. While a bit unconventional he seeks direct results in the usual American manner.

Florence, the nurse, expresses her disapproval silently but forcefully for the pair instantly are off on a mad-cap adventure, loving each other but nevertheless wondering.

After two days of lunching together, dining together and tramping the countryside arm in arm, they decide they know each other perfectly. Then comes a strident note in their symphony of romance. Houston is summoned by urgent business to return to America. He proposes. Leonora hesitates and as she learns more and more of his earlier life becomes exceedingly doubtful. Still hesitating they reluctantly part.

As soon as he has gone the now unhappy girl realizes that her discretion is the poorest part of her valor. She is certain when she compares her American with her almost fiance, Peter. And that lamb-like and adoring soul finds a completely changed Leonora. Bewildered by her manner and angered by her indifference he leaves in a huff, having sealed his fate by inadvertently praising Houston, for the two men knew each other years before in India.

Just when the poor girl concludes that her design of living is traced in deep blue Dwight, approaching a three day reprieve, returns to embrace the one girl.

She doesn't risk another chance and the final curtain finds an astonished young man being introduced to an equally astonished mother-in-law, to be via the long distance telephone.

HOURS OF WORK.

There is a feeling at Washington and around the country that a working week of 30 hours or slightly more would be a good thing now, as a means of spreading employment. There is also a general feeling that it will be necessary hereafter, as a regular thing, because of so much labor-saving machinery. Pending congressional measures are based on these arguments. There is combined with the idea, too, a dim sort of Golden Age ideal of little work and much leisure. It does not follow that such limitation of working time for the nation, by legislative action, except as a temporary emergency measure, is necessarily desirable. Nor is it assured that the reduction to 30 hours is not too radical a change to put in effect at once. In fact the contrary seems apparent. There is every reason to believe that such a violent change will upset industry in many ways and that it is not needed in order to equalize the distribution of employment. Evolution is better than revolution, but extremists never seem to realize this fact. The change from a 42 or 48 hour week to a 30 hour week is too violent.

In any event, such a rule, of course, does not make any more employment; it merely passes around what work there is available. Such division is fair, and may properly be accomplished by law if there is no way to do it by private agreement. But it may be well not to project such legislation very far into the future. Nobody knows what the conditions are going to be a year from now, or five or ten years from now. If work grows and pays good wages again, many of us may want to work more than six hours a day, or economic conditions may demand more work.

AERONAUTIC ROMANCE.

Dirigible airships are romantic. This fact seems to explain Zeppelins. Practically they have never fulfilled the hopes they raised. Count Zeppelin himself, gifted creator of the type, built many for Germany during the World War and saw them all lost. They were shot down, they blew up, the wind wrecked them. He has succeeded better since, but only in exploration and passenger carrying, operating with great caution.

Britain tried them, and has virtually given them up. France never paid much attention to the rigid Zeppelin, and lost interest after the destruction of the Dixmude by lightning over the Mediterranean in 1923. Italy has lacked enthusiasm since the loss of the Italia in the Arctic in 1928. In this country we have proceeded slowly, and yet disastrously. Our Roma, built in Italy, blew up in Virginia in 1922, killing its crew. The Shenandoah was destroyed by a thunderstorm over Ohio in 1925. Now the Akron, biggest of all buoyant airships, lies in the sea off New Jersey, struck down by a thunder storm with nearly all her crew. The new Macon, another giant, is not yet in service.

"There won't be any more airships built," says Chairman Vinson of the House naval committee. This threat, or promise, may be disregarded. But it isn't likely that there will be any more such giants built soon. They cost too much, for ship, field, hangar and crew, considering the service they render. Though huge, they are frail and at the mercy of weather and terrain. Heavier-than-air craft have proved far more practical and economical, serving every purpose served by gas bags. They cannot carry such heavy bombs or freight; but hundreds of good planes can be built for the cost of one Zeppelin.

EINSTEIN AS STATESMAN

Dr. Albert Einstein, regarded by millions as the greatest mind in the world, has less to say lately about his field-theory of relativity. He seems less interested in physics. He is turning from the natural sciences to the social sciences. And possibly he will find in this field his biggest work, as did Immanuel Kant, greatest of German philosophers. This change may come partly from disillusionment. There have been indications lately that the relativity theory wasn't getting on so well. It has been found to conflict with facts in some important particulars. And Einstein is honest enough to scrap the theoretical work of years when facts discredit it.

But Einstein, as Americans have discovered, is above all a human being. He is interested in people and their problems as much as he is in the material world. Events seem to drive him into social activity, and his speculative mind tends to deal with politics and economics as broadly as with physics.

This tendency is strengthened by Einstein's present fortunes. He has forsaken Germany, because it is no longer free and because it stoops to persecution. Living temporarily in Belgium, as an exile, he speaks of the insanity of war and the need of more complete international organization to prevent it. He wants to see war outlawed not merely in pious resolution, but in fact, by combined action of law-abiding nations against peace-breakers. That may or may not come in Einstein's time. But as his great intellect applies itself more and more to public affairs, he may play a prominent part in world progress. And it need surprise no one if he does it largely under the American flag.

PREVENTING BALDNESS

A young lightweight boxer who represented one of the European countries at the Olympic championships at Los Angeles last year appeared in the boxing ring a few months ago completely bald; apparently not a single hair on his head.

A few weeks ago he appeared again and this time his hair was so abundant that it was at first thought that he was wearing a wig. When it was learned that he had a new growth of hair, he was besieged by many bald headed people and by business promoters, anxious to know and use the secret of the new growth of hair.

When asked what he had used, he truthfully replied that he had used nothing; that the hair had simply returned without any thought or effort on his part.

Last year a research worker was able to grow hair on about 20 different individuals who were bald or partially bald. He likewise received thousands of letters and a great many business propositions.

Why did the hair grow again on this boxer and upon this series of cases recorded by the research worker, when as a matter of fact in the majority of cases once the hair goes it doesn't return?

In certain illnesses, such as the Flu, typhoid fever or other acute ailments there is often a rapid falling of the hair. Usually after a few weeks the hair begins to grow and soon returns to its normal condition.

In the series of cases above mentioned it was a disturbance of the little pituitary gland at the base of the skull that was causing the baldness or partial baldness and the use of pituitary extract restored the hair.

Naturally this pituitary extract is not of benefit to the usual cases of baldness, which is due to the fact that the little layer of fat between the bony skull and the skin gets so thin that the scalp becomes more firmly attached to the skull and less movable. The skin becomes more "tight" or tense, and the hair thinner and thinner on the top of the head because of this shrinkage of fat.

In the ordinary case of thinning hair therefore it is good treatment to keep the scalp movable by massage and to use a little oil or fat during the massage.

SCHUBERT CHORAL CLUB PLANS LENTEN MUSICALE

The annual Lenten musical program by the Schubert Choral Club of the Y. W. C. A. will be given on Sunday afternoon, April 9, at the Governor Clinton Hotel at three o'clock in the afternoon, and the public is cordially invited to attend. The club is under the direction of Miss Virginia Los Kamp of New York city who has been developing this group of vocal chamber music singers to a beautiful sense of musical balance and a keen appreciation of artistic effect. Among the selections chosen for the concert on Sunday will be the following by the club: "Blessed Are the Pure in Heart", by W. Berwald, "Ride On, Ride On", Prindle Scott; "The Almighty", by Franz Schubert and "The Long Day Closes" by A. S. Sullivan. In addition there will be solo selections by Frances Phillips, Mrs. Floyd Rich and Miss Los Kamp. The concert will be held in the Crystal Room of the hotel.

The White Cockatoo

by Mignon G. Eberhart

SYNOPSIS: James Sundeen enters a large hotel in Armone, Southern France with a curious group of guests, and a depleted staff. He distrusts the manager Lovschiem and is ill at ease with all the others—excepting an American girl named Tally. Suddenly he is awakened from a doze by Miss Tally's hysterical plea to be allowed to enter his room. He calms her learning she has just escaped an abductor who followed her into the hotel. She will not permit Sundeen to give an alarm but allows him to go for the key of her room, which she has left in the hotel office. Sundeen bids his frightened guest to remain under cover until he returns.

Chapter 4

DRIPPING HANDS

THE corridors were still dimly lit. I glanced over the railing into the lounge as I went past, but it was a black well with a lightish strip along the floor from the faint light of the corridor back of me. I had no trouble getting down the stairs, for I could follow the railing, but when I had once crossed the twilight of the faintly lighted strip in the lounge I was in complete darkness.

Thus it took me some time to fumble about in the blackness for the electric light switches, and all the time the wind was rattling and shrieking in the court just outside. I couldn't find a match in my pockets, and although in hunting for the light switch my fingers encountered the keyboard. I couldn't, of course, tell which key was nineteen.

Lovschiem fell on his knees and stared.

I don't know just how long it was—several moments, at least—when I finally encountered the switch. Touching it threw the little lobby into a light that looked bright but probably wasn't. And even after that it took a moment or two to convince myself that not one of the keys hanging so trustingly on the board on the wall bore the number nineteen.

I finally snapped out the light. The switch was near the door into the courtyard, and I glanced through the glass. The court was still black with flying shadows, but there was a light—it was from the door of my own room. The door was open. The light streamed out.

And at that very instant a dark figure flashed across the light, was silhouetted for a fleeting moment against it and was gone. I caught only a glimpse of a dark figure, but I was sure it was Sue Tally's.

The door of the lobby was locked, but the key was in it, and I had unlocked and opened the door and was running across the courtyard. The wind took the breath out of my lungs, and my heart was pounding by the time I had reached the little winding stairway.

ONE step more to the door. I could see no one against the light streaming from the still open door into my room.

I took the step. There was something on the landing. I was stumbling. I was plunging down upon it. I was confused with it and couldn't extricate myself.

My hands were pushing against it and I was kneeling. I brought my hands up and tried to see them through the dim half light. They were wet, and I could barely see that they were darkly stained.

The next few moments are not very clear in my memory. I managed somehow to get the door open and the limp thing dragged through it and into the corridor, and then I could see it in the light from my own room.

It was a man. I did not know who he was. He was dead. I knew that at once. And it was a very ugly death, for he'd been stabbed. I remember saying to myself: "Don't touch anything, this is murder. Don't touch anything."

Then I was in my room. No one was there: Sue was gone. I was pressing the bell with my thumb. I finally released the button, noted that my thumb had stained the white button in a perfect and gruesome thumb mark, and hurried to the bathroom, where I washed my hands. And then I came back to the bell and washed it, too, with a corner of the towel, and rang again.

I was still pushing the bell and wishing the dead man wouldn't stare so, and in the same moment cursing myself for being so shaken, when I heard the door away down at the beginning of the north corridor open. I stepped out into the hall, avoiding a hand which had fallen slowly outward.

Lovschiem himself, fully dressed, wavered out of the gloom.

HE didn't ask me anything for a moment. He just fell on his fat knees and stared at the dead man. Then he felt for a pulse and touched his face and leaned further over to see if there was any breath at all in that sprawled body. I stood watching him. Finally he leaned back and faced me. And if ever a man's face showed stark livid terror it was Lovschiem's at that moment.

"Did you kill him?" Lovschiem asked.

"My God, no."

He stared at me, dark eyes glittering from the sagging livid mask that was his face.

"Then what happened? He didn't kill himself."

"I found him. There on the landing. I dragged him into the corridor and saw he was dead and rang."

He looked at me disbelievingly. Finally he lowered his eyes. He reached out a hand to the small ornamental hilt of the knife, drew his hand back as if it shrunk from touching the wetness about it, and then stretched it out again. The jewels winked evilly at me. I said:

"You'd better leave it alone, hadn't you? It seems to be murder. And the police won't want things touched."

His hand fell back, and his face, turned up to me, looked faintly green.

"The police. But the police—I am ruined. I am ruined! There's no need to call the police. I can't have gendarmes nosing about. I—" He recalled that he was speaking aloud and to me and checked himself with a quick sidelong look at me.

"It's murder," I said. "You'll have to call the police."

His narrowed gaze measured me, tried to plumb my own eyes. Finally he said:

"I was thinking of the hotel. Anything like this is very bad for the place. Do you know the man?"

"I never saw him before."

"I don't know him either. I never saw him before. He certainly had no business in the hotel."

Although he was not even a prospector, George Walker in 1886 ran across a $10,000,000,000 strike in Africa when he stubbed his toe on a rock and uncovered an outcrop of the main reef of the Witwatersrand deposit at what is now Johannesburg. Walker just happened to be out for a stroll when he uncovered the immense reef.

The deposit of gold-bearing rock at the Witwatersrand is 70 miles across, shaped like a huge buried mixing bowl. From it about $225,000,000 is mined annually.

The whale is given credit quite properly for being the biggest thing that ever lived on earth, the largest measuring about 100 feet from snout to tail. The size of the whale, however, must be based on bulk and not on length, because the little heard-of jelly fish outdistances the giant whale in length. Some jellyfish in the North Atlantic grow tentac that measure 120 feet—which longer than the record whale leng as accepted by modern authorities.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, April 7—William V. Colange is receiving a hearty reception from the home folks after his three-weeks' stay in the Benedictine Hospital, Kingston, where he underwent an appendicitis operation. His stay was prolonged through septic poisoning from the glands of his throat. Mr. Colange felt fortunate in having such able assistants to leave in charge of his store and the post office as Lauren Hesley and Lulu Goldman.

The Ladies' Aid members were treated to a glorious spring day as a setting for their Wednesday's church quilting. Their fine luncheon was as usual an outstanding feature and greatly enjoyed by all. Now that the rush of custom quilting is well in hand, the ladies are starting work on their own quilts and fancy articles for the annual August fair.

The Garden Seed Club members are smacking their lips in keen anticipation for the maple sugar party their kind teacher, Mrs. West, has promised.

On Wednesday Leonard Colange of Boiceville had trucks hauling logs to the Van Buren saw mill at Brodhead and returning with lumber sawed at the local Davis and Hesley mill. Early spring is a busy time for the sawmill men.

Edward Van Kleeck, herdsman at High Point Springs Farm, who is convalescing from his recent appendicities operation, spent the day here Wednesday visiting with his cousin, Irving Hesley, and lending a helpful hand at the sawmill.

Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Bell returned home Wednesday from their week's stay in Binnewater with his son, Joshua, and family.

William Jordan of Brodhead and his right hand man, John Nichols, hauled a truck load of Rondout Valley lime for farmer John Jordan of West Shokan Heights.

Robert York has been hauling some quarry shale for filling in along the driveway at Colange's corner store and postoffice.

The G. L. F. Dixon truck from Kingston made delivery of feed here on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nichols of Sheldon Hill were business callers here Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Minnie Smith, home recently from Bridgeport, Conn., is enjoying a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Golden Van Benschoten, the genial occupants of Hemlock Knoll, Shokan.

Ira Burgher of Kingston pays frequent visits to the home of his mother and sister, Ollie, in West Shokan Heights.

Edmund C. Burgher has been having some sawing done at the Brodhead mill.

Numerous cars containing fishermen pass daily to and from the upper reservoir and Esopus creek fishing grounds.

The names of Sanford Bell of Watson Hollow road and Leroy Davis of Olive Bridge are noted in the panel of 100 jurors drawn for the Uriah Quick murder case.

American Heroines

By LOUISE M. COMSTOCK

Day Dawn

AN IDYLL of the American forests is the story of Thu-Ren-Se-Ra, Day Dawn, a lovely Indian maiden who gave her life to save that of an unworthy and perfidious lover.

During the French and Indian wars the friendship of the American Indians was assiduously courted by both the French and the colonists. Colonel Schuyler with rare tact and judgment had succeeded in forming an alliance for the colonies with the most powerful Eastern tribes. The friendship between the white man and his red confederates had reached such success that the great chief of the Iroquois had accompanied the colonel on a trip to England, and there been highly honored and loaded by the ladies of the court with presents for his daughter, Day Dawn.

To undermine this alliance and secure for themselves the loyalty of the fighting red men, the French bent their efforts. Spies were dispatched in every direction from Quebec; Father LeMoyne, a Jesuit priest, succeeded in winning over the Onandagas. And at length the French laid crafty plans to win also the powerful Iroquois.

Day Dawn was their victim; a dandy of Parisian court, M. DuValle by name, was their tool. DuValle contrived a meeting with Day Dawn in the forests, wooed her with gifts of game and wild flowers. And beautiful Day Dawn, slipping away from her tribe for secret meetings with him, lost her heart completely to this elegant Frenchman with the polished, foreign manners.

And then one night, when the moon was turning the Hudson to silver and the shadows along shore to black and silver bowers, a faithful friend came running down from the village to warn the lovers that Day Dawn's absence had been discovered and the braves of the tribe were almost upon them. DuValle jumped into his canoe, while Day Dawn untied it, and slipped away into the shadows under the river bank. From a covert near the shore the girl watched the pursuing braves arrive, heard them parley and then decide that DuValle had escaped and might be intercepted if they followed the bank up the river. If they did that, she knew, her lover was lost. Quickly she took up his cloak, still lying in the thicket, put on her head his discarded hat, and stepped out of her concealment, her figure black against the moonlight and a sure target. Her kinsmen let fly their arrows.

Thus Day Dawn unwittingly saved, not so much the life of a worthless lover, but an enemy of the American colonies.

(Read Psalm 72:1-8)

The Cry for Justice and Peace

This Psalm prays for a king wh shall bring to a human throne th qualities of Divine administratio The heart of the world was achi for a king like that. The poor waite consideration, the afflicted waite justice, a distressed state waite peace, abundance of peace. The u happy longed for a ruler to bless th world as rain blesses parched field whose universal dominion should b a benediction and whose nam should endure forever. The seventy second Psalm is a coronation hym but no king who ever took the thron of David deserved its glorious ascri tions. The King for whom the hear of humanity was aching was still t come.

Prayer: O Thou Who art above a power and administration, hear, w beseech Thee, the complaint of th oppressed, the lament of the poo and all those who turn to Thy ju tice for their salvation. Thou has long ago sent us the Long Expecte but we have been so slow in makin His laws the rule of our states an His spirit sovereign in our huma ways. We find in our perfect obedi ence to His will the fulfillment of a our hopes. Amen.

(Read Matthew 21:1-9)

The Sovereignty of Gentleness

The King came and yet ho strangely. He had no robes but a poor worn garment nor any chario His immediate hour of acclaim wa all too brief. He was riding on a borrowed beast toward a Cross—onl the Cross was His own. And yet th spiritual Lordship of the future wa riding into Jerusalem that mornin and the crown and scepter of it wa gentleness. On Palm Sunday morn ing Jesus taught the world tha there is no road to any kind of las ing power save good-will which wi suffer to the end, and a meeknes which forgets itself in its passion fo others. Only gentleness, if it be wis and strong, can win and hold th hearts of men. The conquests o pride and arrogance are written i the dust. The conquests of gentle ness are enduring. Palm Sunday i a witness to that and we keep th day poorly if we do not again resolv to extend the realm of gentleness a followers of Him Who through Hi gentleness has an empire which ca not be shaken.

Prayer: Grant unto us, O Lor Who has made the meek Thy tr ministers and through the gentlene of Thy Son reached and changed ou hearts and our ways, a new grace o gentleness. Forgive us our prid and harshness, endue us with Th tenderness toward the sore an stricken and, though we be not grea in power or station, may we be grea in humility. In His name. Amen.

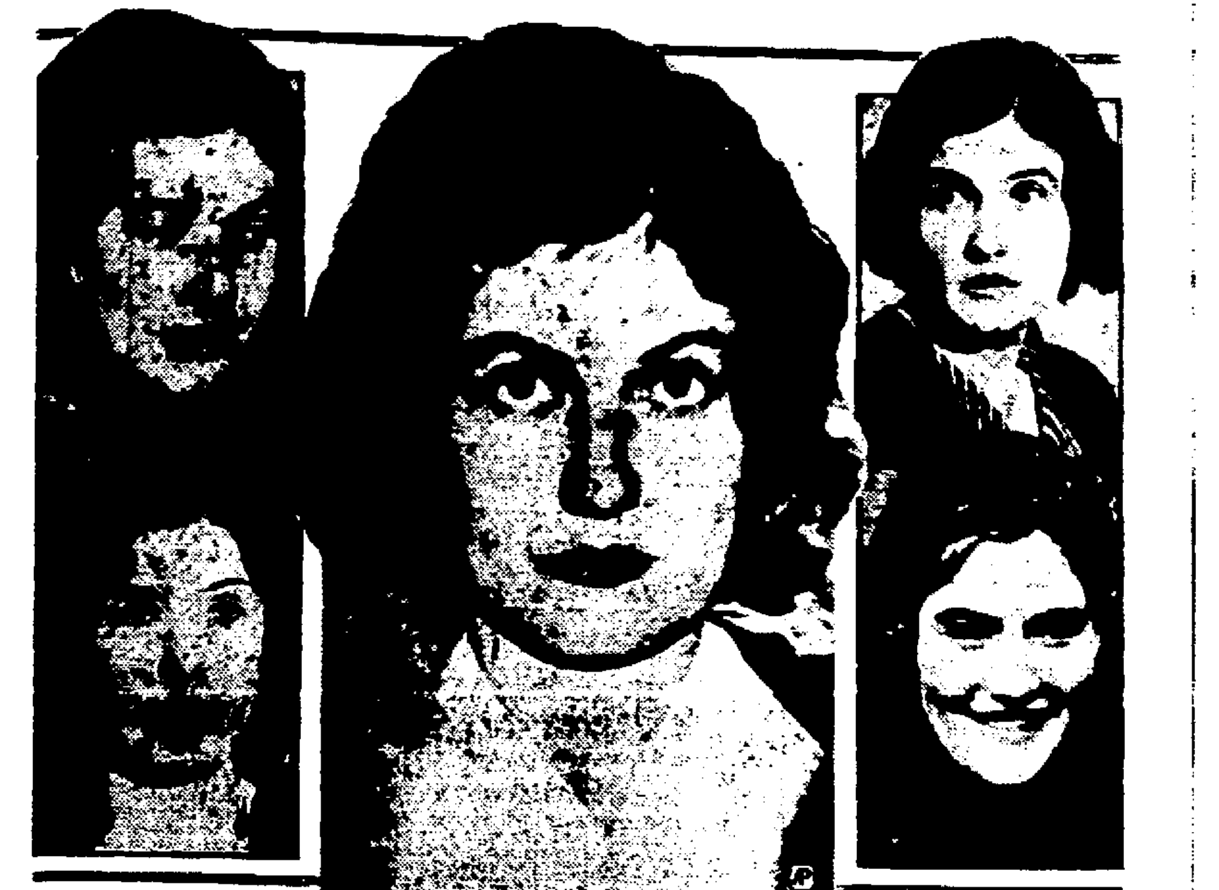
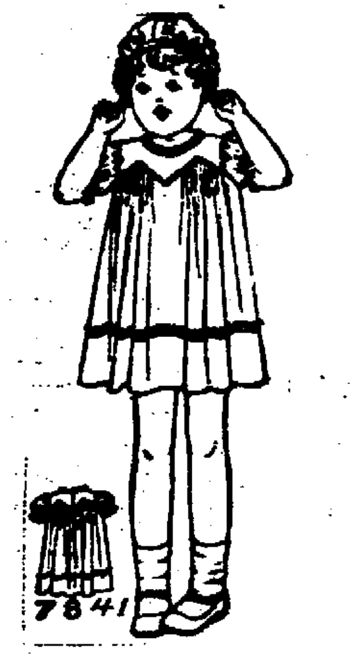
Changing Moods In The Shadow Of The Gallows



Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted slayer of Mrs. Agnes LeRoi, calmly awaits the date set for her execution, April 21, at the Arizona state prison. Her serenity now is in contrast to her behavior at the time of her arrest (upper left) and to her anxiety as she sat in her cell shortly after (upper right). Another picture shows her in the court room (lower left) in a mood more serious than that appearing in the photo (lower right) taken as she left the grand jury hearing.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.



A Dainty Frock for a Tiny Tot.

7841. Pleasing in soft batiste, in dotted swiss, or organdy, and also good in gingham or printed voile. Tucks lend fulness to the dress below the yoke portions, which are cut in pointed outline. The sleeves too are finished with tucks, and are short and comfortable. The neckline is cut low, so it will not bind. A trimming of lace edging and veining is shown.

Designed in 4 sizes: 6 months, 1, 2 and 3 years. Size 2 will require 1½ yard of 35 inch material. To trim as illustrated will require 2⅝ yards of veining or insertion, and 2⅞ yards of edging.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, April 8—Helen Rice and Mary Kenny were the pupils of the Connelly School to receive certificates from Superintendent Johnson for their studies.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Haines motored to Haines Falls on Monday.

Mrs. Griffin and Mrs. Delanoy from Weehawken, N. J., and Mrs. V. Acque from West New York were recent callers on Mrs. Fred Fox.

John Scherer has been ill for the past week with a severe grip cold and is confined to his home. He is under the care of Dr. Ross.

Mrs. A. Beshock and daughter, Mrs. L. Murphy, spent Wednesday in New York city.

The Misses Josephine and Grace Herzog of Kingston spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scherer.

Joseph Scherer attended a board of directors meeting of the Electrolux Co. held in Poughkeepsie this week.

Many from the village have attended the Mission held in St. Peter's Church for the past two weeks.

Private First Class Louis Jones of West Point was a caller at the Scherer home on Wednesday.

Fred Fox continues very ill at his home on Second street. All his friends wish him a speedy recovery to health.

Services will be held in the M. E. Church on Sunday, the Rev. W. E. Gebbard having returned from Conference.

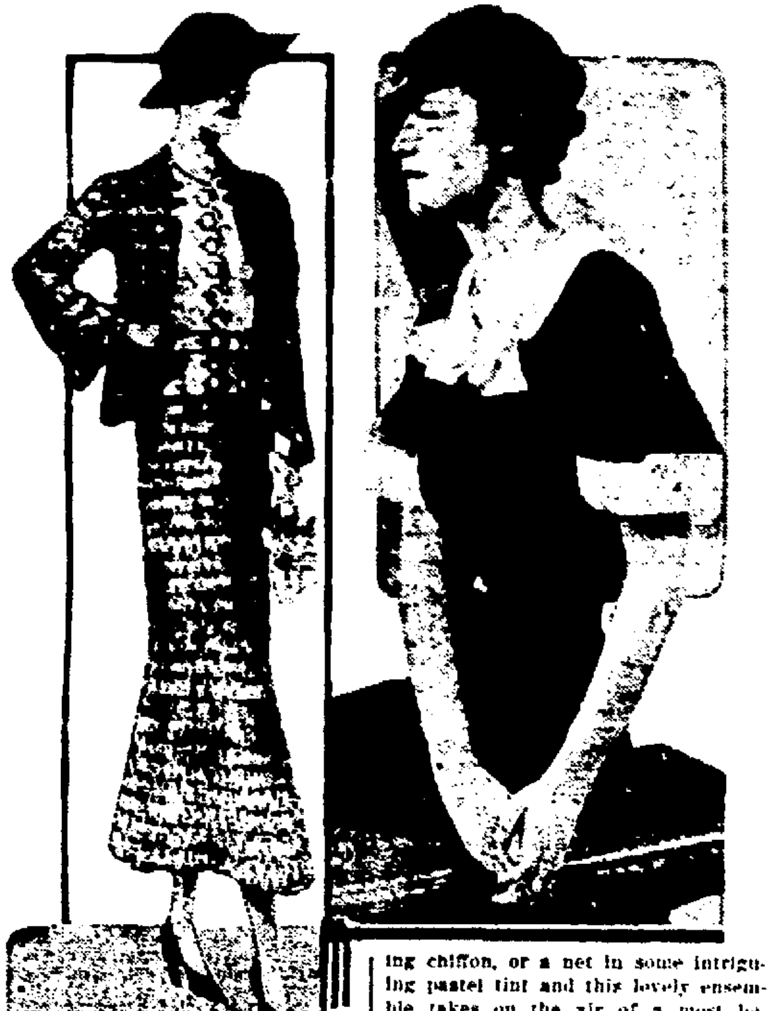
Good Combination

Without labor there can be no accomplishment; without accomplishment there is no human happiness.

Lavish Use of Shirring and Tucking



THERE is a vast amount of shirring, tucking, and we might add, braiding going on in the realm of costume design today. Every once in a while creators of our styles-beautiful do just that—delve into the past for inspiration.

This time research among fashions of yore has caused creators of our styles-beautiful to feel a strong urge to shirr or tuck or braid not only in a trimming way, but according to news from Paris some of the most successful frocks in late collections are either shirred or tucked or braided from head to foot.

The heavy sheers and chiffons which are so enthusiastically exploited for general daytime wear, respond beautifully to these treatments. The effectiveness of allover shirring is convincingly illustrated in the model shown to the left in the picture. In gray, in the new string shade, in black, navy or any of the fashionable colors, for that matter, this costume would be as successfully outstanding. Not only does it carry all the feminine graces but it is thoroughly practical and wearable.

It makes quite a difference as to what sort of a blouse is worn with this jacket suit of shirred heavy sheer. For instance the blouse shown gives it a tailored look thus tuning the costume to the practical hours of the day. Substitute for this tailored satin blouse a frilly affair of lace, or matching chiffon, or a net in some intriguing pastel tint and this lovely ensemble takes on the air of a most beguiling afternoon costume which is on its way to a bridge party, perhaps, or tea at some fashionable rendezvous or a musicale, a matinee or any of the smart gatherings where guests are expected to dress pictorially to the occasion.

You'll love the other frock here pictured. Every one does at very first glimpsing. It is of tucked black chiffon. Its apparent simplicity is positively baffling for it is really ultra sophisticated so far as high style is concerned. The white organdie accents at neckline and sleeves are to be expected, for organdie furbelows have become a passion with fashion's followers this season. The hat is in milan. This fine straw is outstanding in latest millinery showings.

Used in a trimming way shirring and tucking are also immensely popular. Particularly do the smartest blouses show generous and decorative groups of shirrings. Then too, the fanciful little wraps mostly of taffeta or velvet, which are more in evidence than ever, are largely a matter of intricate and novel shirrings.

As has been mentioned before, this revival of quaint trimming treatments has also brought braiding into fashion again. So much so, that many charming net evening dresses are designfully braided with soutache in self color, if not the entire frock then at least the sleeves and yoke and probably a cape effect of some sort.

Trapping of Beavers

About one hundred years ago trapping of the beaver constituted one of the foremost occupations of the early settlers, and one report on record shows that in 1825, a trapper on the San Francisco river in Arizona, caught 250 beaver in two weeks. Prices paid for beaver pelts in those days were small but steadily increased with the shortage of the animals until in 1920, during the fur boom, a first grade beaver pelt brought as high as $100.

Fashions by Eleanor Gunn

We Have Not Outgrown Our Love of Gingham

New York—Like as not, when you were a little girl, you were dressed in gingham. After all, there was nothing very sensible about leaving it behind. The thing that makes gingham attractive and practical for children may be relied upon to be as kind to big sister and to mother too.

Although the shops abound with novelty cottons, it is pleasant to record that gingham holds its own. Some very trim and attractive frocks are fashioned of it, shirtwaist frocks if you like to call then that, and others beside.

It really promises to be a very picturesque summer, the costumes designed for it being gay and graceful, young and easy to manage. They will out last frequent tubbings, and that's in itself, something to be glad about.

It is true that many of the newer cottons are very deceiving in appearance. They look for all the world like woolens, but they are cottons for all that. Some are all crinkly, others have substantial-looking weaves, gabardine for instance which in one of its newest guises has a bold herringbone effect.

Speaking of stripes, some of the newer cottons have a white ground and widely spaced stripes of several harmonious colors instead of merely one. Other cottons have a tweed-like texture. These belong to the ratine family and lend themselves to smartly tailored costumes, ensembles, or for that matter top coats.

One of the very newest and nicest ways of using plaid-gingham is for a coat lining, and it may appear on the lapels too. What next will cotton do? Last season found us all atwitter over pique evening dresses. Now we come face to face with gingham lined coats hanging over the chair backs of our very swankiest luncheon places.

It's hard to talk about ginghams without thinking about aprons. Apron frocks are ever so good this season. They're just another and trickler version of the panel and wrap around idea.

FASHIONS BY ELEANOR GUNN

Crowned Heads Line Up For the Easter Review

New York—We may be said to be frothing at the mouth in anticipation of the Easter pageant. Spring is more prodigal than ever in so far as fashionable plumage is concerned. If there are those who do not find the new fashions to their liking it is because they have been startled out of the rut of the usual. Fashion offers endless opportunities for following one's natural bent.

A great deal is left to the individual—a point surely in favor of fashion. Materials and colors are seasonable and novel. Clothes may be simple or not, as you like. Skirt lengths are not extreme in either direction and with only one or two exceptions, extremes of any sort are not favored.

Whether it is because of Easter and its associations with "bonnets," or whether it is the bonnets themselves, it does seem as if milliners had again outdistanced the couture in introducing innovations. There is the high crown hat, or Chechia fez if you prefer, which is without brim and the capeline which has a brim plus a much higher crown. There is the straight sailor as opposed to the tip tilted hat, some tilted sideways and some forward. There are so many different kinds of straws blown about by spring zephyrs that it is amazing to think that for so many years straws were relegated to the background for felts. Felts have been jockeyed about until they are now merely also rans. Hats are not only different, they are downright exciting, the more so because there are so many flatly contradictory ones. And the veils. Some flaring out from the hat in a way entirely impossible to veiling—crin, or horsehair, being used for this startling type.

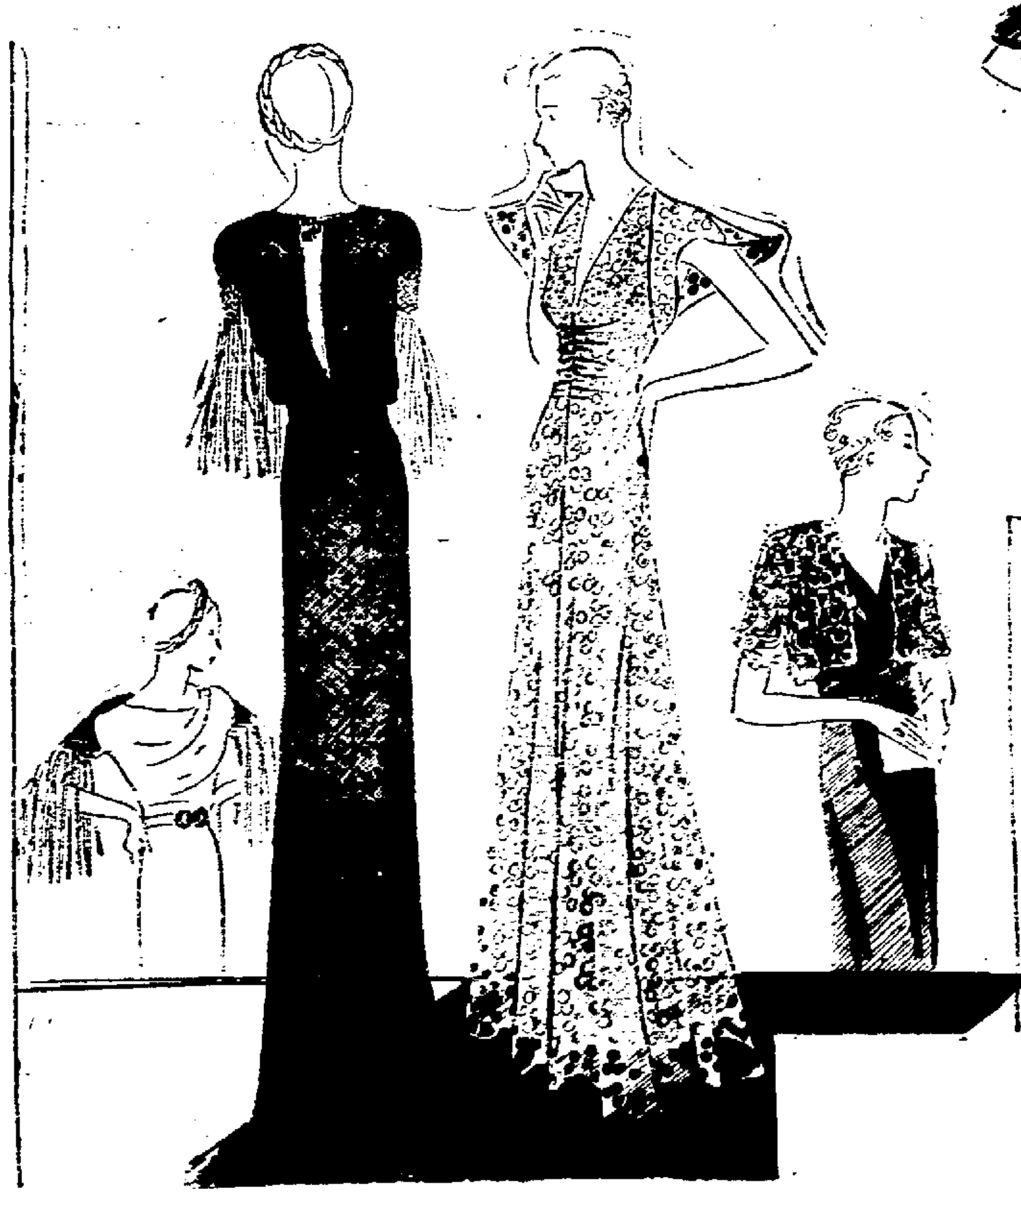
Another breath of springtime that will revive your drooping spirit comes from the fragrance of violets and gardenias and other natural flowers, worn by well dressed woman. It may be only a boutonniere or it may be a corsage, but the flowers must be real, unless, of course, they are in your hat.

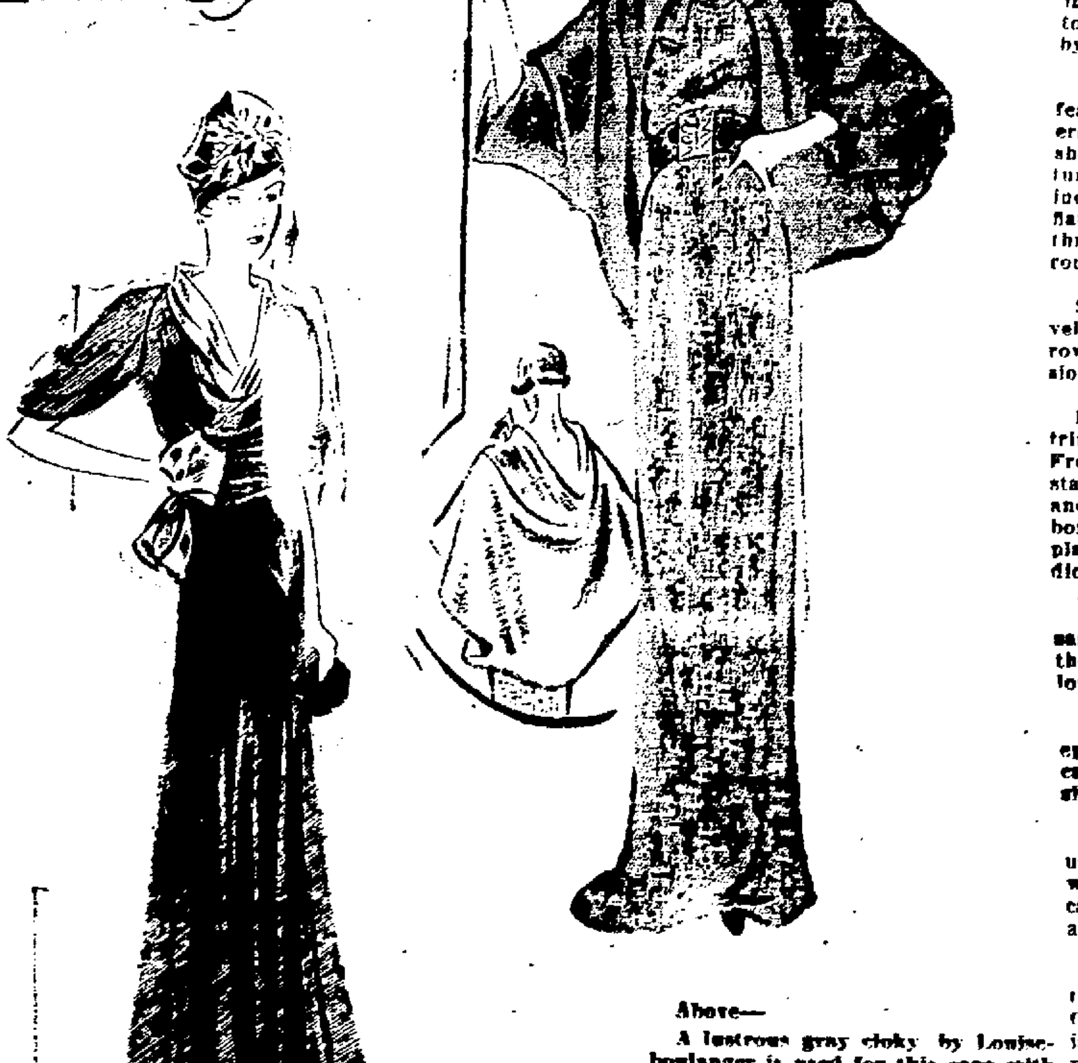
FORMAL FASHIONS FROM THE PARIS OPENINGS . . .

An informal dinner gown by Worth is of black Bagheerida, with bateau neckline draped at front and fastened at back by a square hook and loop of brilliants. The short sleeves terminate in a network of silver laces falling in long fringes.

In totally different mood is a pale, misty blue organdie, allover eyelet embroidered and cut into a crisp summer evening gown with the broad shoulder wings that are a feature of the new spring styles. Fine diamente stones are lightly sprinkled over the top of the bodice.

Even with formal gowns, Worth shows tiny jackets which cover the decollette but add a note of gayety. The one sketched is made of a lacework of dull white satin biases sprinkled with brilliants, and is worn over a gown of black romain.





Above—

A lustrous gray cloky by Louiseboulanger is used for this cape with loose back, sleeved front and scarf tie; it goes over a gown of lame, patterned in gold, silver and black on supple gray ground, widely belted by a dull silver galon appliqued with broadcloth flowers in two shades of red and buckled in gold and silver.

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild.

At left—

"Allegro" is one of a number of costumes designed by Jean Patou for restaurant or theater wear. The instep length gown is of black organza, that crisp silk organdie prominent at the recent openings, and trimmed with pale pink satin ribbon. The toque is of black lacquered satin with tulle crown covered by leaves made of lacquered feathers in black, pink, beige and chartreuse yellow.

Just Another Bedtime Story

There are two interpretations of the night admitting the daytime influence.

Both look very fresh and appealing. One of the entertaining features of the fashion is that frequently the entire bodice of the gown is made of lace. Alencon is used, and even more attractive, is the Bretonne which has also appeared.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Boxy jackets, just covering the waistline, are beginning to appear in Paris streets, worn over wool dresses. These are seen generally in flat furs and occasionally in crowfoot check woolens. This type of check is also frequently seen in hats, scarfs, and in coats. Suits with loose jackets to just below the hips are also worn by smart women.

Collar and muff sets of white feathers, coq or narrower fowl feathers are being shown in the Paris shops to freshen early spring costumes. The collars are three or four inches wide, with the feather laid flat, cut to fasten close around the throat; the muffs are small and round.

Schiaparelli's "circus hat" is developed in a peak crown and narrow cuffs. It represents another version of crown height.

Ribbons reappear as an important trimming in all the collections, both French and American, being outstanding in sashes on evening frocks and as other trimming accents. Ribbons are used as little ruffles to replaces sleeves and as insets on bodices.

Wide moire ribbon is used for sashes on evening frocks tied around the waist with a large bow falling in long ends at back.

That monkey fur is being used in epaulets and trays, and borders for capes and skirts, also in separate shoulder capes.

Cords and large coils of floss are used for girdles, winding about the waistline and tieing or looping in casual manner, approved for dinner and evening dresses.

Cire fabrics are much used in daytime costumes; satin suits of the Chanel type are seen; cire satin jacket costumes in plain and printed versions are noted; cire satin is especially good.

Checking on some of the new color influences, one finds yellow for evening growing in recognition, pale flower yellows especially, while the complementary accent may be either a bright orange or a light bright green.

Pink has new application. Pink with navy is a frequently seen combination as well as navy with pink, pink with eel gray and pink with brwon are even newer.

Taffeta is getting more and more attention. It is more generally used for the foundation slips of evening gowns of the many new soft and stiffened sheers and again for dust ruffles.

Welcome to Kingston, Mr. Motor Car Thief: One out of five cars on our main streets is unlocked and the key is in the ignition switch, ready for you to drive away with it. One out of five motorists is inviting you to take his car, and is cooperating to make it easy for you. You may expect no aid, however, from the city police or the county authorities. They will be after you just as earnestly as though you had taken a car that was locked all around and moored to a tree. That is a chance you must take everywhere, of course.

Motorist's Wife—It's scandalous to charge us $10 for towing our car only three or four miles.

Hubby—Never mind, dear, he's earning it; I've got by brakes on.

A newspaper headline says: "Filling Station Operator Shot in Holdup." We are of the opinion that not even a filling station operator should be shot in such a place.

Hubby—Well, this is certainly a great old car. It runs like a top. Marvelous motor.

Wifey—Yes. But we've had it three years—and the Zipsers have just bought a new Complex Eight sedan.

Hubby—I wouldn't have a Complex as a gift. They're a pile of junk. This heap will run rings around the many day.

Wifey—Oh, no, it won't. The Complex Eight is a marvelous car: it has a vase for flowers, a vanity set, a cigarette lighter in back—and everything.

Hubby—Well, I'm perfectly satisfied with this old boat.

Wifey—The Zipsers are simply crazy about their Complex—and he doesn't earn nearly as much as you do.

Hubby—Uh, huh. Shall we go to a movie?

Wifey—Just for fun just drive over to the Complex agency and look around. I think they're open evenings.

Hubby—Now, look! I told you I don't like that junk and I'm not going—tonight. It won't hurt you to drop in there.

Hubby—Their clutch is no good. And I hear that the rear end is weak—and they use a terrific lot of gas—and they have no resale value and—

Wifey—Turn to the left at the next corner. It's in the middle of that block.

A long ominous silence.

Hubby—How much do you think they'll allow us on this car?

We have observed that an arm protruding from the car ahead always means that the driver is going to do something, if nothing more than knock the ashes off his cigar.

From Pasadena, Calif., a friend of this paper writes us that a lady out there was driving around town with her daughter when she saw a sign on a shop reading:

PERECHOS
ENCHILADAS Y TAMALES

The car was stopped and the lady sent her daughter in to buy some tamales. When the little girl returned with them, the mother, who had been studying the sign, sent her back to find out what perechos were and to price them. A lank and solemn Mexican girl came out to the car. She was embarrassed no end by the questions. "You can't buy that," she exclaimed. "That's my father."

A preacher once told his congregation that the Ford car had taken more people to Hell than any other conveyance. "Hallelujah!" cried an old lady in the back of the church. "My dear sister," said the preacher, "will you please explain why all your joy over my most appalling statement?"

"Because," said the old lady, "I've been told that wherever a Ford takes you, it brings you back.

PUFFY

"Now what shall I do?" says the Puff, with a frown.
"I can't see the virtue in settling down.
I'd be an actor, except for the slam
That some folks already have called me a ham!"

A 1565 Elizabethan salt cellar fetched the equivalent of about $3,490 when auctioned in London.

THE SCHOOL CHILD'S LUNCH

Sandwiches

A school lunch sandwich made of thick, carelessly buttered slices of bread with a piece of fried fat pork or sausage between is not appetizing. Use bread at least 24 hours old, evenly sliced, not more than ¼ inch thick, and carefully spread to the very edge with softened butter—an easy way to soften hard butter is to cream it with a fork, advises the Consumers Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. The knife for cutting bread should be sharp.

Plain bread and butter sandwiches in the lunch supplement the other food often better than filled sandwiches, and when taken with milk, help to make a complete meal. To keep sandwiches fresh that are to be carried, wrap them in waxed paper. A coating of butter on both slices of bread prevents sogginess when a moist filling is used. Cut sandwiches into convenient sizes for eating.

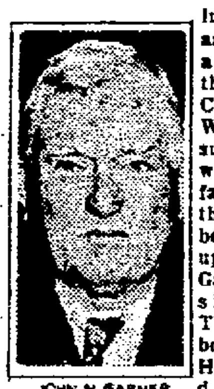
A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — Gossip had it that when Jack Garner moved over to the senate, several of his friends in that body asked him to be a little easier on the gavel than Curtis had been. Whether or not such a request was made, the fact remains that there has been an easing up on the part of Garner as a presiding officer. The sounding board is gone. His gavel is handleless — an ivory head that has been in use since the early days of the senate.



JOHN N GARNER

Instead of pounding as Curtis did, Garner merely raps gently on the top of his desk.

But if he is inclined to be lenient with senators in the matter of discipline, "Cactus Jack" makes up for it in other ways. And one most pronounced is the speed with which he attempts to dispatch legislation.

Making Short Cuts

He hasn't made any public announcements along this line as did Vice President Dawes. He knows his senators too well for that sort of thing. He has gone quietly on his way, taking a short cut wherever possible.

He got by with a "fast one" the first time, but the second time he tried it he was called. The medicinal liquor bill was put through the senate without debate and even without an explanation of what it was about.

Senator Borah chided him privately about it.

"I told him," grinned Garner, "I was willing to take a slap on the wrist or a crack between the eyes any time, but senators should be on their toes and alive to what's going on."

Shortly thereafter he tried the same thing on the controversial District of Columbia beer bill. Actually he had it passed and on its way to conference before Couzens of Michigan and Robinson of Arkansas halted him.

But He Gave In

He retreated gracefully, however, and permitted the senate to reconsider its vote.

Garner has acquired few of the traditional senatorial manners as yet. He still strolls over to the house side of the capitol ever so often to eat lunch in the restaurant with old friends. He is also frequently seen in his old haunts, visiting in the offices of his former colleagues in the house.

There's been only one perceptible change in his habits since he became vice president. While he was in the house, he was up bright and early every Sunday morning and at the capitol catching up with his correspondence or talking with old cronies.

Now he spends Sunday forenoon resting.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The merry, mad days of the movies have many a survivor today, but few so young as Edward Sutherland, a chap who turns out pictures big and little without much ado.

Eddie is 37, looks much younger and seemingly has the constitution of a workhorse. Not that he expects his players to do the iron man act for him; he's no slave-driver. But Eddie can work till midnight, be up at dawn for golf and soon after be back on the set, champing to get started.

Earning His $5

It may be that present-day picture making is child's play for one who was initiated in the olden days. He was 18 when he started, 19 years ago, as actor, property man, assistant cameraman and double for the star.

Consider that the star was Helen Holmes, the picture a serial thriller, and it's evident that the last duty was worth the $5 a week extra he received—over and above his $? salary—the weeks when he doubled fo. Helen.

"One stunt I did put me in the hospital," Sutherland reminisces, "and when I got out I went out to Keystone, became a Keystone cop. All of us were cops, some days. Another day we'd be something else—juvenile, prop man, stunt man, hero. We never knew in advance. They'd put us on a set, give us a few directions, and then suddenly we'd look up and be staring into the eyes of half a dozen lions or bears! Spontaneous comedy, eh? But a merry life!"

Much celluloid has wound through the cameras since those days, and Sutherland has directed the exposing of a goodly amount of it. Long since, he gave up the idea of being an actor. More recently he directed "International House," the comedy introducing Peggy Hopkins Joyce to talkies.

Slapstick Still

Directors get "typed," too, the same as actors. Eddie's lot has been comedy, light comedy drama, with rare exceptions until recently when he made the thriller, "Murders in the Zoo." In his latest production there's an adequate quota of old-fashioned slapstick.

But it's slapstick in modern dress. Eddie is confident it's "box office" and is content—and let who will make "Hamlet!"

"Hussy" Almost Forgotten Word

A term of opprobrium so harsh that it comes under its own shadow and its use discouraged almost as a vulgarism, "hussy" is a word that has lost caste from its original status in the language. When used now it is in the spirit of contempt or reproach, a "hussy" being a worthless woman, a "jade." But originally she was merely a housekeeper. For "hussy" is a contraction of "housewife" or the older form "huswife."

Many Outfield and Pitching Changes For Coming Season

By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, April 8 (AP).—If there was no precedent for the number of changes made to major league infields during the off-season, the turnover in outfielders and batterymen has been equally large.

There isn't a club in either league that won't offer new faces, or old faces in new surroundings, in one or both of these two departments when the season opens next Wednesday.

Only five of the 16 clubs expect to open with the same set of fly-chasers as performed during the closing days of the 1932 campaign.

Some Repeaters

Ruth, Combs and Chapman again will patrol the outer pastures for the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians once more have nominated Averill, Vosmik and Porter. Three National League Clubs likewise anticipate no changes although all are planning on four, rather than three, outfielders. Brooklyn offers the O'Doul-Wilson-Taylor-Frederick combination: The Cardinals have Medwick, Watkins, Martin and Orsatti, and the Braves, Berger, Schulmerich, Worthington and Randy Moore.

The other 11 clubs all will offer at least one new man on the last line of defense. The Pittsburgh Pirates have acquired Freddy Lindstrom to team up with the Waner brothers; the Giants will have George Davis and possibly Hank Leiber, a rookie, in the opening lineup along with Mel Ott. Chick Fullis will occupy Davis' old spot in the Phillies centerfield, and Harry Rice and John Moore probably will form the Cincinnati Reds' fly-patrol along with Chick Hafey. The Chicago Cubs, already crippled by the loss of Hazen Cuyler, suffered another blow yesterday when Babe Herman twisted his ankle. Herman may be out a week. If so, Charley Grimm will have to scout around for somebody to team up with Riggs Stephenson and Frank Demaree in the Cub outfield on opening day.

In Different Lineups.

Al Simmons and Mule Haas will be doing service this year for the Chicago White Sox while their old positions in the Philadelphia Athletics outfield are filled by Bob Johnson and Lou Finney. Washington and the Browns swapped two-thirds of their outfields during the winter, Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte going to the Senators, and Sam West and Carl Reynolds to St. Louis. Detroit has picked up a promising rookie in Mervin Fox and the Boston Red Sox will have Bob Seeds and perhaps John Winsett as new regulars.

Pitching Changes.

The pitching staffs, as usual, have been vastly changed, both through trades and the development of youngsters. The more important trades sent Ray Starr and Glen Spencer to the Giants; Bob Smith to the Reds; Ray Benge and Owen Carroll to the Dodgers; Dazzy Vance, Jim Mooney and Bill Walker to the Cardinals; Walter Stewart and Earl Whitehill to the Senators; Fred Marberry to the Tigers and Lloyd Brown and Dick Coffman to the Browns.

And over and above all these shifts, virtually every club in both leagues will offer promising rookies such as Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe of the Tigers; Ed Linke of the Senators, Don Brennan and Russ Van Atta of the Yankees; Merritt Cain and Gowel Claset of the Athletics; Jack Knott of the Browns, Justin McLaughlin of the Red Sox; Ed Fallenstein of the Braves; Walter Beck of the Dodgers; Frank Pearce of the Phillies; George Murray and Joe Heving of the White Sox; Belve Bean and Howard Craghead of the Indians; Roy Parmalee and Bill Shores of the Giants; Hal Smith of the Pirates and Beryl Richmond of the Cubs.

The principal catching changes will find Gus Mancuso back-stopping for the Giants; Frank Hogan for the Braves, Luke Sewell for Washington, Johnny Gooch and Mervyn Shea for the Red Sox, and Roy Spencer for the Indians. One of the best of the rookies is Frank Reiber of the Tigers.

De Molay Nine to Practice Sunday

The De Molay baseball team will hold its second practice duel Sunday at 1 o'clock at the Kingston Fair Grounds. Players expected to attend the session are: Earl Tongue, Don Buswell, Eric Larsen, Had Follette, Joe Ross, Al Blackwell, Pat McEntee, Leslie Every, Bob Townsend, John Whitaker, Otis Valentine and all others desiring to secure a position on the team.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press.)

Pittsburgh—Frank Novak, Pittsburgh, outpointed Jack Pallat, Cleveland (10). Tiger Joe Randall, Elizabeth, Pa., stopped Danny Devlin, Allentown, Pa. (7). Frankie Edgren, Cheyenne, Wyo., outpointed Joe Doktor, Buffalo (10).

St. Joseph, Mo.—Tommy Corbett, Omaha, outpointed Henry Flaegano, Des Moines (10); Herolf Matthews, Lincoln, Neb., outpointed Vale Falegano, Des Moines (6).

Boise, Idaho—Harold Hawkeswood, Des Moines, knocked out Harry De Witz, Spokane (2).

San Francisco — John Henry Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., stopped Emmett Rocco, Pittsburgh (7).

Boxing Features For This Summer

New York, April 8 (AP).—Max Baer and Max Schmeling on June 8, Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera early in July—that appeared today to be the most probable lineup for metropolitan New York's two big outdoor boxing shows this summer.

Winning every round of his promotional battle with Jimmy Johnston of Madison Square Garden, Jack Dempsey received permission from the New York State Athletic Commission yesterday to shift the Baer-Schmeling match from June 1 to June 8.

The effect of that move was to all but force the Garden to delay the Sharkey-Carnera heavyweight championship bout until early in July. Under a recent commission ruling, 20 days must elapse between major bouts. The Garden thus could not put on the Sharkey-Carnera battle in May but only at the price of a terrific gamble with the weather.

New York Teams Show Home for First

New York, April 8 (AP).—New York's three major league teams stage the annual ceremony of unveiling their new lineups before the home fans today, weather permitting, after spring training and exhibition tours that have kept them away for more than a month and taken them over many thousands of miles of the country.

The Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers make their first new York appearance of the season at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn's home park, while the Giants entertain the Detroit Tigers at the Polo Grounds. Only the Giants are expected to present a radically changed lineup, at least until the substitutes start going in. Bill Terry's National Leaguers have four new regulars as they have been lining up, George Davis in center field, Hank Leiber in left, Blondy Ryan at shortstop and Gus Mancuso behind the bat.

The Giants also boast the longest spring tour, some 9,000 miles to the Pacific Coast and back through an earthquake and a few other startling happenings. So far they have won 19 out of 28 exhibition games. They are all square with Detroit, each team having won two games. The Yanks' spring record also has been good with 17 victories, five defeats and a tie. Brooklyn has won only seven out of 18 spring contests.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

"Babe Ruth," notes a sporting commentator, "from various sources has received perhaps twelve million dollars since he separated himself from a Baltimore parochial school to become the technical ward of the late Jack Dunn, owner of the Orioles."

Maybe this was the proof-reader's fault or a bit of mathematical miscalculation. The Babe has done some amazing things in the course of his career, financially and artistically, but he never collected twelve million in rupees, yen or pesos, much less dollars.

Without prying too deeply into the great man's personal affairs I should say a fair estimate would be that the Babe, from all sources of revenue, has taken in somewhere in the neighborhood of $1,500,000 in the last 20 years; certainly no more than $2,000,000. If it was over that, Ruth would like to know it.

Of course this dwarfs the earnings of any other two ball players combined, Ty Cobb and Rogers Hornsby included. It seems fantastic, even so, but the fact is that Ruth's salary checks alone for 19 years run to around $900,000, and that he nearly doubled this with his "cut" of receipts from advertising stunts, sundry endorsements of everything from candy to underwear, ghost-writing, motion pictures and barnstorming.

Was A Free-Spender

The truth is that Ruth's days of slashing into the big outside money, while the boom was on, were limited in several ways. He got his biggest slice out of the motion pictures but his manager and other associates took a fair portion of most of the profits from by-products activities.

Of course the Babe was a free-spender in the "old" days. Never having been used to handling important money, it simply meant something to get rid of in exchange for a good time. He cannot say now just how much he frittered away on bright lights and dark nights, elusive friends and unreliable horses. Anyway, it ran well up into six figures.

The interesting contrast here is that the Ruth of today knows just what happens to all his money, just how much income tax he has to pay and what the income is on every investment. If he doesn't, his wife does. They have a family budget. Ruth doesn't keep the books but he signs the checks. The Yankees no longer have to counsel the Babe to be thrifty and put something away for the rainy day or his old age.

$1,000 Per Homer

Barring injury or some unexpected setback, Ruth should come close to hitting a home run for each $1,000 of his salary for 1933! which of course will not prove anything or be of much interest to anyone outside the statistical department.

The Babe's homers were cheapest for the Yankees in 1920, when he hit 54 on a $20,000 salary and 1921, when he jumped the total up to 59 for $30,000.

Thereafter Ruth never was paid less than $52,500 per season, until he signed his latest contract, and he did not pass the 50-mark again until he clouted 60 in 1927, his first year under a three-year $70,000 per year contract.

News from the World on Wheels

Sales of Buick cars in March show an accelerated upward trend. In the last 10-day period of the month, the total registrations made through our dealers were 1636 new cars. This is a gain of 734, or a trifle more than 80 per cent, over the 902 cars titled in the second 10 days of the month. That figure surpassed by 339 cars, or 57 per cent, the 573 new cars sold in the first third of the month. March's total sales of 3111 cars are regarded as a satisfactory index of recovering buying power.

During the first quarter this year the Chevrolet Motor Company manufactured 148,336 new cars and trucks as compared with 133,363 units in the first three months of 1932. In March, despite the unsettled banking situation, total production came within 300 units of equalling March of last year. Comparative figures are announced by Mr. Knudsen are 38,665 units this March and 38,890 last March. Both January and February production ran well ahead of the corresponding months of 1932.

A fourteen-thousand-mile 'phone call from Melbourne, Australia, to J. Howard Teagen, export manager of Continental Automobile Company, obtained four distributors for the South Sea continent and an order for 138 Continental chassis. It was 10:21 a. m. in Detroit, and 1:21 a. m., next day in Melbourne when Teagan answered the ting-a-lingling of his 'phone and was greeted with "Ow's your 'ealth this morning?" Teagan was just starting his day and T. J. Morris of Kemsley & Co., Ltd., well known Australian commission house, had just returned from a late supper party tomorrow evening, or whatever it is they do in Melbourne around the midnight hour. According to an official of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, less than thirty minutes were required to put the call through from Meboürne to Detroit. The total distance over which the two men talked was 14,170 miles of which almost 13,000 was by radiophone.

Making a clean sweep of all official A. A. A. stock car hill climb records in Alabama and Georgia the Essex Terraplane Six and Eight broke seven records within a period of five days. This gives the Terraplane a total of 22 records broken this year starting with Daytona Beach runs in February. The Alabama records included Eula Street Hill and Shades Mountain, Birmingham; Brown and Gunter Hills in Montgomery avenue and Buena Vista Hill in Atlanta, Georgia. A few minutes after the Terraplane Six broke the official record on Buena Vista Hill at Atlanta, with Al Miller at the wheel, Chet Miller driving a Terraplane Eight lowered the Terraplane Six record.

Republicans Study Bills To Raise Taxes

Albany, N. Y., April 8 (AP).—The Republican-controlled assembly, after holding the governor's tax bills in committee all day yesterday, prepared today to bring out his measures and their own to choose the taxes necessary to raise $85,000,000 in new revenue.

The governor's program, already passed by the senate, consists of a one per cent sales tax, a one per cent gross income tax, and increase in the personal income tax and a dollar-a-barrel beer tax. The senate has already passed an increased inheritance tax introduced by Senator George R. Fearon of Syracuse, Republican leader in the upper house.

The program, considered by the Democrats as acceptable to the Republicans, was left somewhat in doubt yesterday when the assembly repudiated the proposed continuation of last year's emergency one cent gasoline tax. The assembly also delayed passage of the emergency increase in the personal income tax which the governor proposed to carry over from last year.

The Democratic leaders had counted on the passage of these measures without opposition. They are both emergency taxes enacted last year upon the recommendation of former Governor Roosevelt.

The defeat of the gasoline tax threw the budget program $15,000,000 out of balance. The Republicans had already forced the abandoment of a new one cent additional tax on gasoline. The tax is now back to two cents a gallon, the same as the original tax.

FIRST DUTCH CHURCH SPECIAL EASTER ACTIVITIES

On Easter Sunday a nursery for young children (above the age of two years) will be inaugurated. This will enable mothers to leave little ones in competent hands while the mothers are given an opportunity to enjoy the 11 o'clock Easter service.

On Wednesday, at 3 o'clock, a Lenten union prayer service will be held in the chapel of this church with Miss McAfee as laeder. The subject is "Consecration." On Good Friday, at 3 o'clock, Stainer's "The Crucifixion," will be sung by the regular chorus choir of the church with Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Doty, William Raible and Harry Clearwater soloists. On Thursday evening, is the quarterly preparatory service at 7:30, to be followed by reception of new members by the minister and elders.

On Easter Sunday, following a custom of many years the calendar will carry the names of all those in whose memory friends have made contributions toward the Easter flowers. These flowers are to be distributed among the sick and shut-ins the afternoon of Easter.

New members will be received Easter morning.

LOCAL SINGERS TO APPEAR AT GREEN AND GOLD BALL

It is with great pleasure that the entertainment committee of the Green and Gold Ball presents, again this year, the Colonial Choristers, a quartet of local singers who have appeared upon former occasions before local audiences. They have always been well received and favorable criticism of their work has invariably followed their appearances. The quartet consists of Mabelle Wicks, soprano; Pauline Leiske, contralto; Joseph H. Craig, tenor; and Vernon Miller, bass. Their accompanist is Miss Ruth Flicker. Their program is as follows:

I
a. Wishing Song
b. Where My Caravan Has Rested
II
a. I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby
b. Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life

Governor Calls Fo A $60,000,000 Bon Issue To Aid Jobl

State Capital, Albany, N. Y., A 8 (AP).—Governor Lehman called on the New York legislature to pass a bill for a new $60,000, bond issue for unemployment re

"We must look ahead to the wi ter of 1933 and '34," Governor L man said, calling attention to fact that New York state "has ta the lead among the states of Union in providing work, food shelter to those of its citizens desire to work but who have jobs."

"It is unthinkable," the gover continued, "that the work of re be abandoned. It must continue."

New York already has spent $7 000,000 on unemployment relief, ginning in the summer of 1931 w former Governor Roosevelt called legislature into extra session for creation of the state tempo emergency relief administration.

Of the $75,000,000 the state tained $20,000,000 in loans from Reconstruction Finance Corporat It raised $20,000,000 by raising income tax; voted $30,000,000 bonds and appropriated $5,000,0 from current funds.

Governor Lehman said he anxious to pass the bond issue during the present session of legislature, now close to its end, order that it may be voted upon the election next November.

He revealed that the need for lief reached its peak during the winter months when the rel money was spent at the rate of than $10,000,000 a month. The calities spend the money and state reimburses them for 40 per c of their expenditures.

"New York was not only the in point of time to provide a co prehensive program of distress lief," Mr. Lehman said, "but it been foremost in the extent scope of the relief afforded.

"The need for relief still co tinues. The urgency which broug about the commitment of the to the policy of feeding and cloth its needy unemployed still persis

It was understood a few w ago that virtually all of the $30,00 000 voted last November for re had been spent. Since then the has obtained approval by the C struction Finance Corporation loans for the building of public jects, notably the Knickerboc Village in New York city and t Grand Island bridges between Buff and Niagara Falls.

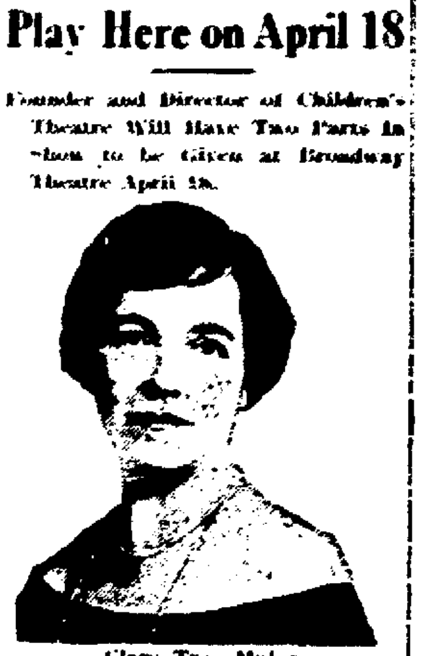
Clare Tree Major To Have Role In Cast of Play Here on April 18

Founder and Director of Children's Theatre Will Have Two Parts in Show to be Given at Broadway Theatre April 18.



Clare Tree Major

Clare Tree Major, founder and director of the Children's Theatre of New York, will appear in the cast of "Little Women," which will be presented at the Broadway Theatre on Tuesday morning, April 18, at 10:30. This is the only production of the Children's Theatre in which Mrs. Major appears. She will play two parts, doubling as Hannah, the March's faithful servant, and Aunt March, the rich and irritable relative of the Little Women.

Clare Tree Major comes of a family whose name has long been one of the most distinguished on the English stage. She attained an enviable reputation for herself on the English stage before coming to America. She was for two years with the Washington Square Players, now the Theatre Guild, at the Comedy Theatre. She then assumed management of the Princess Theatre, where she became impressed with the need of suitable plays for children. Fifteen years ago she founded the Children's Theatre, which has made her name famous to thousands of children in New York and throughout the country.

Members of the Children's Theatre Company have caught Clare Tree Major's joyous spirit in their work, and that joy and sincerity finds a ready response from the young audiences on the other side of the footlights.

SERVICES AT ULSTER PARK CHURCH AND CHAPEL

The regular morning service of the Esopus Reformed Church of Ulster Park, the Rev. Ralph H. Beaumont, pastor, will be held at the Brick Church at 11 o'clock. The pastor will preach on the subject, "Palm Sunday in the Twentieth Century." The evening service will be held at the chapel at 7:30 and will be conducted by the Kingston Youth Council. It will be remembered that the young people conducted a service for us something over a year ago and that their visit was greatly enjoyed. We will be glad to welcome them again.

The regular sessions of the Sunday schools will be held at 10 o'clock. The Ulster Park Sunday school will meet in the church and the Union Center Sunday school in the chapel. Christian Endeavor Society in the chapel at 7 o'clock.

ROSENDALE GRANGE WILL MEET MONDAY EVENING

Rosendale, April 8.—The regular meeting of Rosendale Grange, 1501, will be held in Firemen's Hall on Monday, April 10, at 8 o'clock. There are a number of important questions to be brought up and a record attendance is expected.

The lecturer has prepared a very elaborate program in the form of a spring style show. A large selection of styles will be displayed on living models, consisting of evening, morning and afternoon wear, also spring hats and coats.

There will also be entertaining features of a sketch, solos and duets.

The refreshment committee includes Jeanette Conklin, Hazel Conklin, Helen Pomeroy, Otto Mollenhauer, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Urbelis, Anna Urbelis, John Burnes and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mollenhauer.

ROSENDALE WOMEN'S CLUB MEETING HELD THURSDAY

Rosendale, April 8—The regular meeting of the Rosendale Women's Club was held at the home of Mrs. Stephen Huben Thursday afternoon, April 6. Mrs. Mary L. O'Connor presided. The by laws and purpose of the club were explained to several new members. To correct certain misinformation, the club is strictly non-partisan in either its activities to advance community welfare or in its discussions on civic or governmental affairs.

The card party which was postponed recently was definitely set for May 3. The proceeds will be used to erect a flag pole at the Veterans' Memorial Monument in Rosendale.

Declare Dividend

Sixty Pints Per Person Is Beer Quota to Raise $150,000,000 Tax

In terms of individual thirst, Treasury estimates that Uncle Sam's beer tax will bring $150,000,000 of new revenue to the government during the next year presuppose an average annual consumption of sixty pints of foaming 3.2 per cent brew for each man, woman and child in the United States.

PINT SEIDEL OF BEER 2¢ TAX

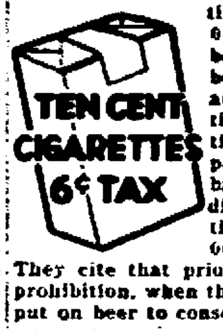
With the tax running at the rate of $5 per barrel of 31 gallons, or two cents per pint, the anticipated collections amount to an average of $1.20 per person.

The pre-prohibition tax on beer was $1.50 per barrel. Although this has been more than tripled by the $5 rate assessed against 1933 beer, Treasury authorities predict that the new tax will remain a secondary source of internal revenue. First place among excise taxes, in volume of revenue produced, will still be held by cigarettes. These are counted on to bring in approximately two dollars in taxes for each dollar expected from beer.

½ PINT SHELL OF BEER 1¢ TAX

By comparison, for instance, a package of cigarettes, whether it sells for ten cents or more, pays Uncle Sam six cents in tax—three times the tax that will be collected from a pint seidel of beer. It will take six half-pint shells of lager to produce as much tax as is paid by one ten-cent package of smokes. As against the estimate of $150,000,000 next year from beer, the government collected from cigarettes during 1932 a total of $310,573,823.26.

Internal revenue experts, however, predict that the official estimate of $150,000,000 from beer taxes will be exceeded by actual collections. This estimate, they point out, is based on a predicted consumption of 30,000,000 barrels. They cite that prior to war-time prohibition, when the lid was first put on beer to conserve grain, we were consuming well above 50,000,000 barrels annually.



Collections from brewers for 1917, the last full year before prohibition, amounted to $87,875,672.76. On an equal consumption, the beer tax at the new rate would be $292,916,000. Which, however, would still be less than the $310,573,823 collected by Uncle Sam in 1932 from cigarettes.
